County Sales Tax Hike Being Considered

By Jon Powers

KINGSTON

A one per cent increase in the Ulster County sales tax — which could generate more than $4 million in additional revenues in 1976 alone — may help to reduce the estimated 50 per cent hike in county property taxes threatened by the tentative 1976 budget.

Some Ulster County lawmakers, on both sides of the political aisle, are seriously considering a proposal to hike the county sales tax from one to two per cent to help offset a projected $15 million increase in the county budget for 1976.

Approval of such a measure would increase the sales tax that county shoppers pay on certain taxable items from five to six per cent. The City of Kingston, with a two per cent sales tax of its own, would go from seven to eight per cent, the maximum currently allowed in New York State. The State sales tax is four per cent.

"It is something that we will definitely have to look at," said Louis M. Klein (D-Dist. 6), the legislature's newly-elected minority leader, "it could increase revenues by as much as $4.2 million, and leave us with about $10 million that would have to be raised by taxes, just about the same amount as this year."

The tentative 1976 budget calls for a total tax levy of about $16.9 million, compared to $9.2 million this year. Klein, and a number of other lawmakers, are confident that the proposed $2 million contingency fund to protect against possible default by New York City will be deleted by the time the final budget figure comes up for a vote on Dec. 20. That would leave a tax levy of about $14.9 million.

The estimated $4.2 million that Klein believes would be raised by a one per cent increase in the county sales tax would lower the tax levy to about $10.7 million. He, and others, feel that even a 16 per cent tax increase would be more palatable to property owners in the county than the 50 per cent increase residents are faced with now.

Klein said Tuesday that a "vast majority" of the taxpayers he has talked to recently favor the sales tax increase primarily because part of the burden would be shifted to non-residents of the county.

"If a person is paying $400 in property taxes now his increase in 1976 will be $200," said Klein, "but with an additional one per cent sales tax, that person would have to spend $20,000 on purchases during the year to match that $200 increase. I don't think there are very many people in the county who spend that kind of money."

Klein's suggestion has found some cautious support among other county legislators. "I don't think the idea is out of line," said S. Robert Kelder (R-Dist. 5) "it would spread the revenues out over a larger tax base. The resort business is a big one in Ulster County and I don't think the tourists would really notice an extra one per cent tax. In the end, it would amount to quite a lot of money."

"I think we're going to have to take a strong look at an increase in the sales tax," said James F. Gilpatric (D-City), "it's the method that would least penalize our citizenry. I don't think very many people will stand for the type of property tax increase we're faced with now."

Gilpatric raised another significant point. Next year — 1976 — should be a banner year for tourism in historic Ulster County, and the sales tax revenues could be substantial. In addition, Ulster County is strategically located between the New York metropolitan area and Montreal, Canada — the site of the 1976 Summer Olympics. "There are going to be a lot of people passing through the county next year," said Gilpatric, "and they'll be leaving behind a lot of money."

There is one major complication: any sales tax increase must first be OK'd by the New York State Legislature which is, itself, considering an increase in the state sales tax as part of the New York City bail-out plan. Klein said he is working with Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101) to determine how a county sales tax increase would be received in Albany.

Whether or not the sales tax plan gains momentum, county lawmakers are continuing their search for excess fat in the proposed budget. An executive budget session Friday reportedly helped eliminate some $250,000 in appropriations, but some legislators are looking to make deeper and more significant cuts.

"I'm thinking seriously about recommending that the budget be sent back to the department heads with instructions that they eliminate another five per cent," said Stephen G. Hyatt (R-Dist. 2), "it wouldn't be a very popular move but I think it can be done. It's surprising how much can be cut when it has to be cut."

George Barthel (D-Dist. 7) agrees. "I think it's a fine idea," he said, "some departments may be cut to the bone, but I think many could do a little more trimming."

The legislature isn't expected to meet formally again until after the Dec. 1 public hearing (7 p.m. in the county office building). The lawmakers can be reasonably confident that a number of unbelieving taxpayers will be on hand with some lucid suggestions of their own.

By Plane or By Boat?

An uncommon site occurred on the Schuylkill River in Philadelphia on Tuesday when a seaplane landed. Here the airplane takes off as it passes a sailboat. The pilot, Walter Molechek of New York City landed the plane to see if city officials would allow him to make use of the river again to drop off passengers. (UPI)

Structural Cracks Close UCCC Library

STONE RIDGE

"The very heart and center of the academic program here at Ulster County Community College will be its library. The library will serve as a learning-resources center—and will be central to all campus academic activities."

That was the bright promise of UCCC's board of trustees in the spring of 1966 when the Stone Ridge campus was taking shape on its 82 acres of gently sloping meadow land and apple orchards.

The college's Macdonald DeWitt Library, a handsome, modern, two-story, brick building opened in the fall of 1967. This week—and only eight years later—the promise of the apple orchards turned sour.

Ulster County Community College, through its president, Robert T. Brown, announced tersely today that UCCC is closing the library immediately "to permit further study of a structural concern." With no San Andreas fault to take the blame, cracks had been discovered in the building by workers in the process of rearranging the book collection. And, on the advice of a consulting engineer, Brown said the Board of Trustees had approved the temporary closing of the library as a safety measure.

For the time being, at least, the library will cease to be the "center" of the college as library facilities will be fanned out in other campus locations. While no college spokesman felt qualified to suggest the root causes of the structural cracks, Brown said the decision to close the building had been made after consulting engineer Alfred Scarperi of Kingston had been called in to look at the cleaves in the walls.

And while it had been ascertained that the building was "in no immediate danger of falling down," it was announced that "a more thorough look must be taken" at the structural problems just discovered. While analysis of the problem and work towards a permanent solution continues, the college will be closed for the next four days for Thanksgiving recess. To accommodate students and community residents who utilize the library, plans for temporary facilities will be announced as soon as possible.

Those plans could include giving students greater access to area public and college libraries.

But other questions will doubtless be asked as study and analysis of the cracks that broke the library's back continues. Some of those questions will undoubtedly be posed to the Robbie Construction Company, identified by one college spokesman as the library's builder. The firm has apparently ceased operations as a contractor since that job was completed.

Squeaky Jury Still Out

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The jury in the Lynette Fromme case has given strong indications it was deadlocked on the charge she tried to assassinate President Ford. Today was its third day of deliberation.

The eight-woman, four-man panel was stymied Tuesday night despite a key change of instructions by the judge that was supposed to make it easier to reach a verdict on a lesser charge of assaulting the President.

Assault against a President of the United States is punishable by up to 10 years in prison with parole possible after three years. The attempted assassination charge carries a maximum life sentence with parole possible after 15 years.

Rebellion Is Crushed

LISBON, Portugal — Progovernment commandos overwhelmed a rebel military police regiment today in a pitched battle behind the presidential palace, crushing one of the last remnants of a leftist rebellion that had brought Portugal to the brink of civil war.

The commandos attacked as a progovernment column of 14 tanks moved into position to assault a leftist light artillery regiment near the international airport. The artillerymen appealed for a truce and negotiations.

Atrocity Trial Begins

DUESSELDORF, West Germany — A former New York City housewife went on trial today for allegedly participating in the murder of 250,000 Jews in a Nazi concentration camp during World War II.

Mrs. Hermine Braunsteiner Ryan and 12 other persons were charged with murder and other violent crimes against Jewish prisoners in a concentration camp at Maidanek, Poland, between 1941 and 1944.

The judge said a 14th defendant failed to appear for the trial because he was taking a psychiatric examination.

An Appeal for Peace

BEIRUT — U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim appealed today "in the interest of world peace" for an end to the fierce religious warfare that has racked Lebanon for seven months.

Heavy street fighting in the capital diminished during the night with the appearance of 300 army commandos ordered by the government to "fight the gunmen in their own way."

Waldheim flew to Beirut today for a brief visit en route to Damascus, where he will discuss Syrian and Israeli views on extending the U.N. peacekeeping mandate in the Golan Heights.

Five Indians Indicted

RAPID CITY, S.D. — Four Indian men have been indicted by a federal grand jury for last summer's slayings of two FBI agents on the troubled Pine Ridge Indian Reservation.

Those indicted Tuesday included James Theodore Eagle, 29, the man the two agents were seeking when they were shot to death in what the FBI said was an ambush June 26.

A five-hour shootout between lawmen and Indians followed. One Indian was killed but the rest escaped.

Firemen Winning Battle

GLENDALE, Calif. — Firemen appeared to be slowly winning a see-saw battle today with two huge brush fires that blazed across 68,000 acres and gnawed into the suburbs of Los Angeles, destroying or badly damaging 43 homes.

The biggest blaze, the Tujunga fire covering 45,500 acres, was more than 50 per cent contained.

The second major fire, on the slopes of Mt. Baldy some 30 miles east of the Tujunga blaze in the Angeles National Forest, was only 30 per cent contained. It flamed through 10,000 acres Tuesday, bringing the total acreage consumed to 23,000.

Carlos' Decree Denounced

MADRID, Spain — Spain's largest outlawed opposition party today denounced as inadequate the limited pardon of criminal and political prisoners announced by King Juan Carlos I in the first goodwill gesture of his reign.

The decree Tuesday was Juan Carlos' first formal attempt to win popular support at home and abroad. It came only two days before foreign chiefs of state were to gather for festivities celebrating his ascent to the throne.

PUPPY CREASED ACROSS THE HEAD

Hunters Practice on Dogs, Veterinarian Protests

STONE RIDGE

The shooting last Sunday was the trigger that caused a Stone Ridge veterinarian to shoot off a letter of protest to the Freeman about "so-called sportsmen" who practice their marksmanship on dogs and cats.

Dr. Andre Ross has been a practicing vet in the area for ten years, three in Stone Ridge and seven before in High Falls. Every small game and deer season she gets the bullet or shotgun wounded pets in, five already this season.

At 2 p.m. Sunday, the seventh day of deer season, a three-year-old beagle named "Puppy" was cavorting along Vly Road in Stone Ridge escorting two 13-year-old girls on their way back home from returning a little boy to his home down the road.

As the two girls entered the Douglas Trowbridge home two shots rang out, one entering Puppy's shoulder while the other dug a furrow across the top of his head. He was less than 100 feet from the door.

The dog was rushed to Dr. Ross's office by the owners where the doctor was able to stitch what was left of the top of Puppy's head back together and treat the shoulder. She stated as we viewed the shaken dog in her office, "A quarter inch deeper and he would have been killed." Bullet fragments remain in the dog.

She is sure most of the pet shootings she treats are not accidents but deliberate "target practice." Many have been shot more than once, such as Puppy. Besides, she says, "How could you mistake a beagle for a deer?"

Some other incidents Dr. Ross has dealt with this fall:

• During SMALL game season Nov. 6, a 150-pound great dane wearing a red bandana received wounds in the back of his neck and his jaw while playing in his owner's yard in West Hurley.

The same great dane had been shot a year before in its other jaw, losing the sight of an eye as well.

• A tiger cat had his hind leg blown off with a gun in Olivebridge.
• A pointer was wounded in its abdomen in Stone Ridge.
• A young shepherd dog was shot dead through the heart in New Paltz.

Some other cases that stand out in her mind include a stray dog shot in the shoulder eight years ago that was brought into her office. High impact hunting shells tend to shatter bone, she noted. You generally have to amputate the leg. After this operation, she kept the stray for a long time and finally placed an advertisement in the Freeman offering a three-legged dog. "Five people called up," she remembered, offering it a home.

And perhaps the nastiest result of this penchant for torture she has seen was a dog who had been shot full of rock salt from a shotgun. The particles festered under its skin and became inflamed all over its body.

What can be done about such shootings? Immediately the pet owner should try to keep the pet indoors or near the house during hunting season, she said. "If they are ever fortunate enough to catch one of these hunters in the act, they should do everything possible to see that the killer is reprimanded," she advised.

Dr. Gilbert Hoppenstedt, president of the 12-member Ulster County Veterinary Society, shares offices with two other vets south of Kingston on Route 32. He said his practice normally gets "about two or three" hunting-related shootings a season, plus other miscellaneous cases throughout the year. "I would be exaggerating if I were to say we get a lot," he commented.

Of this Dr. Ross snorted, "He's a hunter. He goes out West after moose or something every year. . . . I don't see how a veterinarian can hunt."

Drive Begins Tonight

KINGSTON

On this eve of Thanksgiving, Kingston residents will be asked to make the holiday more meaningful through an expression of their generous impulses. Those fire sirens that will sound tonight throughout the city at 6 o'clock will herald the season of gift-giving this year in a unique manner.

For tonight is "Beggar's Night," and those who have reason to be thankful are urged to contribute to those who need help. And community-wide self-help is needed to repair the ravages of fire at the Children's Library—a fire that left the building on Broadway unuseable; destroyed many books, materials and records.

As volunteers go door-to-door tonight with specially marked canisters, those eager to give are asked to leave their house lights on from 6 to 9 p.m. And to tune in from 7 to 9 o'clock to WKNY, which will be broadcasting live from the Freeman in a telephone-thon aimed at eliciting further pledges. By calling the Freeman at 331-5002, residents who are staying home tonight to get a head start on their Thanksgiving dinner can join in the "Beggar's Night" fund raising campaign.

Lawmakers Still Face New Taxes

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — State lawmakers, having acted on a $205 million tax package for New York City residents, must still face Gov. Hugh L. Carey's requests for $872 million in new state taxes.

State taxes will not be on the agenda when the special session resumes Dec. 3, but they will surely dominate the behind-the-scenes activities.

Approval of the city tax package late Tuesday night was the next-to-last piece of a financial mosaic that Gov. Hugh L. Carey and state leaders hoped would keep New York City from default.

Leaders were hopeful, and privately optimistic, that the final piece — federal loan guarantees to ensure the city's ability to borrow money to fill in the gaps — would be provided by President Ford.

"The ball is in the park of the President," Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut said after the 12-hour legislative day. "We have done our share, now the challenge is, will he do his?"

Steingut said the agenda next week will include proposals that New York City employees live in the city and a merger of the state's April presidential primary and regular September primary into a single election in June.

"And," Steingut added, "I feel in the ensuing days, there will be additions to that calendar."

Senate Majority Leader Warren M. Anderson managed to have the issue of state and city taxes separated during the first 10 days of the special session because he was anxious that upstaters not link the two issues.

Carey has insisted against the objections of Republican lawmakers that the state is heading for a $600-$700 million deficit unless drastic actions are taken to either cut spending or boost revenues.

The first problem will be to balance the state revenue figures for December against projections of state spending and the general economy for the remaining four months of the state fiscal year to come up with a gap figure that all can agree with.

Then, according to the blueprint laid out by Carey, possible cuts will be examined and the difference will be made up with new taxes.

Most of the new taxes for New York City residents will be effective on Jan. 1.

The program includes a $75 million boost in the city income tax, a $45 million increase in the levy on bank profits, plus a series of so-called nuisance taxes that account for the rest of the $205 million.

A $10 increase in the city's $15 auto registration fee was rejected at the last minute by stubborn Assemblymen, who last Saturday had nearly scuttled the tax package.

However, leaders averted what might have been disaster for the package by doubling the proposed bank tax increase to make up the $15 million lost from the auto fee boost.

Final approval of the package was also delayed for several hours when a hitch developed in expanding by $200 million the ceiling on the amount that the Municipal Assistance Corp. could borrow for the city to pay for operating expenses.

Assembly Minority Leader Perry B. Duray objected that, as written, the bill would have made the change permanent.

instead of a one-time advance to help the city meet its payrolls and expenses over the next few weeks.

Lawmakers waited to cast

the final vote until a new bill could be drafted.

Most of the 13 bills were approved by comfortable margins in the Assembly, with opposition coming from Republicans and a few Democrats.

In the Senate, the margins were as close as a single vote on some of the bills, with dissent coming from several New York City lawmakers of both parties and upstate GOP legislators.

Assembly Tax Talk

The Assembly began debate on the $205 million tax package for New York City Tuesday in Albany. One of the lead-off speakers was Willis Stephens (R-Brewster) who said he would support passage of the new taxes. (UPI)

Those Photos Show Something

PASADENA, Calif. — (UPI) — The engineer who used space agency computer techniques to improve underwater photos from Scotland's Loch Ness is sure the pictures show "something" in the lake, but do not prove the existence of its legendary monster.

Alan Gillespie of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, an arm of NASA, said Tuesday he performed the computer enhancement on photos taken by Robert Rines of Boston.

"There seems to be something there in the lake," Gillespie said.

"But we don't know if it's a genuine animal or not. After many, many hours of studying these pictures, I haven't found the slightest evidence of fraud. In my opinion Rines is sincere, serious and honest about this whole affair."

Rines believes the photos may show the "Loch Ness monster," the existence of which has been debated for centuries. There has been speculation the loch contains a number of plesiosaurs, water-dwelling dinosaurs thought to have been extinct for 70 million years.

Gillespie's specialty in the laboratory is computer enhancement of photos of planets, such as Mars and Mercury, taken by far-ranging NASA spacecraft. The computer process makes visible the details that register on film but are too subtle to be perceived by the unaided human eye. He was allowed to use the laboratory's equipment on his own time to aid Rines.

"There was no computerized air brushing of the data," he said.

Gillespie worked on two pictures taken by cameras, equipped with strobe lights, that Rines stationed in a scientific symposium in Edinburgh, Scotland, in two weeks.

Los Angeles Times science writer George Alexander, allowed to see the photos, described them as "a confused — and confusing — jumble of dots, splotches and blurred shapes in tones of white, black and gray, mostly gray."

"One photograph shows what could be construed as a large light-colored body against a black background with two triangular fins, or flippers, sticking straight down from the torso and a long curving neck emerging from the top of the torso," Alexander wrote.

"At the end of the neck is a grotesque object — a head? — with features that could be imagined as open jaws, an eye and bony growths."

Gillespie said the photos are difficult to interpret because in one, the object is about 19 feet from the camera, and dim, and in the other it is too close for perspective. "It becomes a version of the story of the blind men trying to describe an elephant by feeling the different parts," he said.

Dinner in the Jail; 'Something's Missing'

Inmates of Cook County Jail will celebrate Thanksgiving Day by devouring 2,500 pounds of turkey — but there'll be no drumsticks.

All bones more than 1½ inches long are considered potential weapons and will be removed before the holiday feast is served.

Outside prison walls, Americans will gorge themselves with turkey — drumsticks and all. There'll be scores of parades — including Macy's annual Thanksgiving extravaganza in New York City.

For the more adventurous, there's a marathon run from Hollywood to Las Vegas. The "life begins at 60 and 70 super marathoners" took to the road today for their annual Thanksgiving 300-mile run between the two cities. The runners, who describe themselves as "nasty old male chauvinists," range in age from 61 to 76.

This year, they'll have some competition. The "Marathonettes" — girls and women ages 16 to 44 — will race the men to Las Vegas.

For some, it will be a special Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Melanie DeWitt of Des Moines, Iowa, and 15 other senior citizens will join Gov. and Mrs. Robert Ray in festivities at the chief executive's mansion.

"I don't really worry about the menu," said Mrs. DeWitt, "but I know it's going to be the thrill of my life."

Doina Vircol will have her "happiest Thanksgiving" Thursday night when she is reunited with her husband.

Romanian officials allowed Mrs. Vircol, 37, and her son to come to the United States on Thanksgiving of 1972 to the bedside of her dying father, exiled Romanian poet Vasile Postelnicu. He died Dec. 6, 1972.

But Romanian officials ordered her husband Alexis, 39, to remain behind.

After her father's death, Mrs. Vircol decided to remain and fight for her husband's release.

For three years she fought for Alexis' release. Again, Thanksgiving brought success.

Various organizations will feed the poor and the elderly holiday dinners. U.S. servicemen around the world will be served nearly 175 tons of turkey and 24 tons of cranberry sauce.

President Ford, in proclaiming Thursday "a day of national thanksgiving," urged the nation to "join in expressing personal gratitude for the blessings of liberty and peace we enjoy today."

"I call upon all Americans on this day to gather with family and friends in homes and places of worship and join in offering gratitude for this nation's countless blessings," Ford said.

Open Program For Junior Stars

KINGSTON

David J. Panner, executive director of the Children's Rehabilitation Center of the Ulster-Greene Counties on Webster Street, was guest speaker at the open program of the Alice M. Scardefield Constellation of Junior Stars 25, Saturday, Nov. 22, at the Kingston Masonic Temple, 31 Albany Avenue.

Panner was invited to speak to those assembled on Cerebral Palsy and its related defects. Miss Susan Yochmann, Exalted Star of Light and Love, presented Panner with a donation of $105 which was donated by the members of the Alice M. Scardefield Constellation of Junior Stars 25 from the proceeds from a Fashion Show they sponsored in September. An additional $100 was donated to the National Cerebral Palsy Foundation in the name of Miss Sandy Hazelwood, Grand Exalted Star of the Grand Constellation of the State of New York. Miss Hazelwood has chosen Cerebral Palsy Association for her Charity Project for her term.

A musical degree entitled "F" is for Friends and Fun was staged by the officers of the Constellation. Mrs. Beatrice Gille, of Clinton Chapter 445 Order of the Eastern Star, was escorted through the degree and received wishes of friendship on behalf of all those in attendance that evening. Miss Yochmann presented metallic rulers inscribed with the Golden Rule motto to all those assembled at the program. The Golden Rule is Miss Yochmann's motto for her term and she feels that True Friendships could only be obtained by following this Rule.

Miss Laurie Mine, Star of Mercy, was escorted to the East and presented with a trophy from the Exalted Star as best musical accompanist. Miss Mine accompanied the exalted star during the talent show earlier this month when Miss Yochmann won a trophy for best musical talent.

Miss Irene Boyle, member of the Grand Advisory Board, was escorted to the East and introduced and accorded Grand Honors. Visiting dignitaries also were escorted and introduced and accorded a hearty round of applause. They were: Allen Rowe, Region Senior Councilor of the Four Rivers Region of the State of New York Order of DeMolay; and David Rowe, Master Councilor of Colonial Chapter Order of DeMolay of Kingston. Members of both Colonial Chapter and Rhinebeck Chapter Order of DeMolay attended the evening's festivities. Twenty-nine young people joined in a friendship circle at the close of the program. During the social hour following the program an and penny social was held while refreshments were served.

Gamma Chi Activities

ST. REMY The November meeting of Gamma Chi Chapter No. 2392, Beta Sigma Phi, took place recently at the home of Betty Rae Decker of St. Remy. A model business meeting took place for the benefit of the six new rushes who were present for the first time. They were Nancy Smith, Jean Nerone, Anne Marie McFarland, Colleen Misove, Barbara Sass, and Janet Borello.

Members decided to continue the practice of giving a Thanksgiving basket to a needy family. A donation was sent to United Way of Ulster County. The Chapter will also take part in a new program, "Mail For Tots," which will include writing letters and sending cards to children who are ill and will be hospitalized for a long period of time. Some of these small patients are terminally ill.

In December, a decorating party is planned at the Infirmary Annex at Golden Hill. Refreshments will be served to the patients after the decorating project.

The Pledge Ritual dinner took place Nov. 25 at Beekman Arms in Rhinebeck.

After the business meeting, a program was presented which included "Of House and Home" by Elsie Kemble and "The Women to Whom We Are Indebted" by Donna Lawrence.

YMCA's Triangle Club Prepares For Annual Yuletide Gala

KINGSTON Women of the YMCA's morning exercise group called the Triangle Club will hold their annual Christmas party for all women of the Y on December 10.

Betty Bunce, who is chairperson of the event, reports that this year's party will be held at the Kingston Manor House.

And the Triangle Club members, in lieu of grab bag gifts this year, are joining in the mushrooming effort to help the Children's Library of Kingston, recently hit by a fire. Instead of the grab bag gift this year, members will turn over funds from the party to the Children's Library benefit fund.

One of the highlights of the December 10 Yuletide party will be a fashion show with fashions furnished by Perpetua Manufacturing, the Snow Flake Ski Shop and Baltz Manufacturing.

Several awards also will be made during the party with the following merchants contributing:

The Community Theater, Dock and Dine Restaurant,

Cors Eleven Main Restaurant, Salvucci's Restaurant, Abram's Music Store, Miron Liquor, Burgvin Florist, Lord's and Ladies II, Jet Set Beauty Parlor, Our Place, Sweetheart Gallery and Ulster Tool and Die.

Women wishing information about the party may contact the Y. The YMCA is a member of the United Way of Ulster County.

CDA Social Set

Catholic Daughters of America, Court Santa Maria No. 164, will hold a Christmas party Dec. 4 at Governor Clinton Hotel, Kingston. Members are asked to bring their husbands to make it a family celebration.

Santa Claus will make an appearance. The program will include an impersonation of Pat Cooper by Alfred Spada.

Music will be provided for dancing. Reservations may be made with Martha O'Leary.

An important meeting is planned for Dec. 11 when members will vote on a new recording secretary due to the current officer's resignation.

The Court held its annual memorial Mass recently at St. Colman's Church in East Kingston. The Rev. Msgr. T.R. Mullins officiated. A Dutch treat luncheon took place afterwards at Judie's Restaurant, Kingston.

Masseur's Late Hours Rub Wife Wrong Way

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a masseur, and he has his own parlor. Our problem is the growing number of women who find it impossible to come in for massages during Walter's regular working hours. To accommodate them, he stays evenings, which means Walter and his customer are there all alone.

One woman used to come in three times a week — always after hours — so I started going down there when she did, and she finally quit coming in for massages.

Walter became upset and said he doesn't want me coming down to his parlor at all because the word is getting around that he has a jealous wife — which is hurting his business.

I say he does well enough during the day hours and doesn't need to work evenings, too. Also, I've never known him to work overtime on a man or an elderly or obese woman — only young, good-looking ones.

Have I a right to be suspicious?

WALTER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Yes. But you can't be absolutely sure until you catch Walter rubbing one of his customers the wrong way.

DEAR ABBY: I am stationed in Seoul, Korea, and read your column in the Pacific Stars and Stripes.

My wife is back in the States. We've been married two years, but have spent only 10 months together because of my Army training and stationing in Korea.

My wife used to smoke before we were married, but I asked her to quit and she did.

She wrote to tell me she has started smoking again. She says it "relaxes" her and keeps her weight down. "Only half a pack a day," she claims, but I am very much upset because I hate the habit and don't want her to smoke at all.

As her husband, do I have the right to demand that she quit? My mother used to smoke over three packs a day, and you should have seen her when she got up in the morning. I don't want that to happen to my wife.

What should I do?

FAR FROM HOME

DEAR FAR: Don't make an issue of it in your letters. You'll only upset her and increase her need to "relax." When you get home, ASK her to please quit. But I warn you, unless she herself is motivated to quit, she probably won't.

Being a husband doesn't give you the "right" to demand anything except fidelity.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14-years-old and ashamed to admit it, but I still wet the bed.

When my friends ask me if I can spend the night with them, I make up an excuse like: "My mother won't let me."

Abby, I know it's a sin to lie, but I just can't tell them that I still wet the bed. Can you help me?

ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED: There are more kids your age who still wet the bed than you would believe, and it's nothing to be ashamed of.

Ask your mom to get a "wet alarm." (It's advertised in leading mail-order catalogues — and it really works! After you've tried it, write again and tell me if it worked for you. I care.

Plaudits for Former Resident

KINGSTON
Craig Sonnenberg, a Kingston High School graduate, Class of 1972, has drawn kudos from two reviewers of the 19th

Craig Sonnenberg

Century play, LEONCE AND LENA, recently offered at Hamilton College in Clinton.

Sonnenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert O. Sonnenberg of 75 Miller's Lane, who is majoring in theater at Hamilton College, was praised by both Harry Kondoleon and Andrea Kantor for his professional touch in costume designing for George Buchner's play.

Said Kondoleon: "The costumes ought to be shown and shown again, as examples of some of the most professional work done in this school's theater or any school's theater."

"Designed by Craig Sonnenberg, each costume was conceived and executed with such brilliant eccentricity and skill as to give the entire validity to the mythic world created."

And Andrea Kantor adds her plaudits for the former Kingston High School student when she wrote:

"Costume designer Craig Sonnenberg has created a world of 'shapes,' the outer form of the characters, which illuminate their various messages. His designs resemble chickens, grotesques, fools and space creatures in plumage; a carnival world of madness."

Sonnenberg, a senior at Clinton, who is hopeful of further studies in the theatrical line, has been a busy student during the past three summers at the upstate college.

He has been closely identified with some off-Broadway productions at the campus theater, again in the role of costume designing.

The FAA and Stewart

A recent environmental report on possible expansion of Stewart Airport near Newburgh confirms estimates make previously of tremendous economic benefits.

The Federal Aviation Administration made the study. It was necessary before the Metropolitan Transportation Authority could proceed with the expansion of the airport.

Specifically, the report deals with the projected lengthening of the main runway of the airport from its present 8,000 feet to 12,000 feet. In these days of economic hardship and with the jobless rolls increasing, The Freeman is happy over the prospect of creating more than 4,000 new jobs when work on the runway expansion begins.

In addition, the infusion of more than $50 million annually into the region's economy and a county population increase of more than 10,000 within 10 years is also good news.

The only negative factors, at least according to the detailed report, are increased air and noise pollution. But they are expected to remain well within acceptable limits and there would be no other significant environmental changes.

According to the consultants, Stewart is admirably located to serve its intended purpose as a regional airport, with equal distances to other airports at Albany, Binghamton, Wilkes Barre and Hartford.

Proponents of the airport, who have been battling for months to get moving with the work, view the expansion as the biggest single factor in lifting the Mid-Hudson region out of its economic doldrums.

The next step in the long approval process is a public hearing in December. There will be much opposition at that hearing, but, hopefully, the proponents will use the FAA report as a formidable weapon against environmental arguments.

On-Site Picketing

The United States Senate passed a recent bill that could have serious consequences on future construction projects—particularly on much needed housing.

The bill gives the building trades unions the right to picket all non-union construction sites. In short it's nothing more than the United States government forcing compulsory unionism on an entire industry.

Because of this bill the competition that now exists between union and non-union employers will be severely diminished.

Senator Jacob Javits was one of those voting in favor of the bill. This state's other Senator James Buckley voted against it.

A Presidential veto is necessary to defeat this union power-grab, which would enable a union to shut down a complete construction site whenever it has a dispute with one of the sub-contractors working there.

The Freeman urges its readers to urge their area Congressmen to support President Ford's veto, if and when it occurs.

The NYC Situation

Same Problem Here

Editor, The Freeman:

We do not have to laugh at the bankruptcy that the people of New York City and their city faces. Politicians in general are more concerned with lining their pockets, not about the suffering of the people. No wonder why 40 per cent of the voters do not even bother to register to vote. They lost faith in both the elephant and the jackass.

The people here in the Hudson Valley are in the same boat, and soon will feel the pinch, perhaps worse than New York City. How many people right now are losing their property, houses, farms, etc., because they cannot meet the high school and land taxes? The people who invested their life savings to buy a few thousand dollars in city bonds now face misery. What about our local people who in the course of their 40-50 years of saving will be thrown out of their property because of high taxes?

Sometime ago, while I was lying sick in bed with bronchitis, three men rushed in, stating that they were appointed to reassess my property here in Plattekill. Like an invasion of locusts these so-called reassessors (none of them known by me as local residents) started to run around knocking on the doors of the tenants of Maple Villa and asking for information about the size and content of their apartments. So, while I was sick and in bed, through the windows of my room I had the opportunity to see the bunch of hoodlums running wildly with rulers, pencils, paper, pads, and cameras, snapping pictures of the "enemy" territory. I even saw them snapping pictures of a doghouse belonging to a tenant.

Of course, this is not surprising, and our people better realize very quickly that we are confronted by a great conspiracy. The utilities, with the help of their stooges, the Public Service Commission, are in a race to see how much and how fast they can raise their rates. These so-called reassessors are busy raising our assessments so they can serve their masters in the counties and in Albany, and receive their fat salary at the expense of the taxpayer.

Editor, The Freeman:

We've been hearing in press, radio and TV constant dire predictions of the imminent bankruptcy of the State of New York. As New Yorkers, we are concerned and also amazed at the lack of human compassion on the part of our President Ford. Many suggestions are being made about how to solve the problem. Mainly they suggest cutting expenses by firing half of the city workers (what they plan to do with unemployment increases, they don't mention).

In discussing these problems with our son, we came up with our own suggested solutions:

A Dollar From Everyone

Editor, The Freeman:

I am writing in concern of the crisis now occurring in New York City. The problem of NYC going into default, in itself, is quite disturbing and will most definitely affect the U.S. as a whole.

I am but one individual in a state of many, where I have very little power as one. I feel the press should be a good way to be voiced. I was thinking about what is going on with NYC the other day and came up with an idea. Maybe someone else has thought of it, but I haven't heard about it. With due reason, I feel that many people are concerned with NYC going under. Even people in Kingston are talking about the problem. The problem being—New York City is waiting on the government for financial aid, when the government should be kissing the city's behind. (U.S. spending in Vietnam equaled $1 million a day.)

To get to the point—why not start a state-wide aid collection to help out NYC? If everyone in this state donated one dollar, the city wouldn't have to sweat as bad. Look at all the money each individual wastes every day!

A legitimate committee would have to be formed. Not one formed from a bunch of lawyers and political figures, but one of enthusiastic individuals such as teachers, consumer aid specialists and eager volunteers. Unfortunately a sponsor would be necessary to get the gears moving ($).

Look at it this way, why not let the people of New York State help save the city. Give 'em something to be proud of, they (we) pay enough taxes and only see the outcome of their efforts every once so often.

There is a whole array of complaints I could think of against the governments disconcert with NYC's problem, but it seems like such a waste. Well, if anything as I've suggested can be done, please get it started. You are the press, one of the most powerful forms of communication we have in our system. Help the city before it's too late.

Thank you for your time.

MICHAEL W. FLANDERS,
Kingston.

Inside Report

Reagan Campaigns

By Rowland Evans
And Robert Novak

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Ronald Reagan in his first two days as a full-fledged presidential candidate showed how difficult it will be for President Ford's supporters to successfully brand him the Barry Goldwater of 1964.

While preaching the evangelical conservatism that delights the Republican party's dominant right wing, Reagan avoided the hip-shooting that destroyed Goldwater in 1964. Moreover, his advisers have salted his prepared statements with a phrase here and there retreating from unrelieved anti-detente and pro-big business dogmatism.

The high point of the first two days was an hour-long question-and-answer session in Manchester, N.H., attended by 1,100, which proved one of the virtuoso exhibitions in Reagan's dozen years in politics. The controlled, entertaining and often eloquent performance could be matched in mechanical execution by no other candidate today.

Thus, the news for the White House from Reagan's campaign debut in five key primary states (Florida, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Illinois, California) is bad: the Ford campaign formula for cutting down the Reagan challenge is unlikely to get much help from Reagan himself.

That formula began emerging within the last two weeks. Ford operatives, belatedly reconciled to Reagan's running, started spreading the word that the Republican party should never repeat the debacle of 1964 by nominating another Goldwater.

Inflexible Positions

Indeed, Reagan's positions on this opening swing were as inflexibly rightward as Sen. Goldwater's: anti-abortion, anti-busing, anti-ERA, critical of the United Nations and the Vladivostok SALT agreement, pro-business, pro-balanced budget, pro-military spending.

Where Reagan last week differed from Goldwater a decade ago is the absence of offhand, extreme-sounding Reagan pronouncements on Social Security, nuclear warfare and the like. In fact, Reagan erred on the side of caution last week. Weak spots of his opening press conference in Washington were his refusal to discuss specifics of defense spending and New York fiscal problems for lack of detailed knowledge — inadvertent deference to the incumbent President's expertise.

Moreover, Reagan's opening speech contained two small items of success for what his astute campaign manager, John Sears, has sought all year: a subtly altered posture making Reagan acceptable to the great American center.

Item No. 1: He listed "big business" along with "the Congress, the bureaucracy, the lobbyists and big labor" as among the nation's problem-makers. Item No. 2: While assailing the Ford Administration's soft-boiled bargaining with the Soviet Union, he proposed to "continue" to seek peace "through detente."

Reagan's ideological rigidity still poses some problems. Responding to questions at Manchester from radical young members of the People's Bicentennial Commission, he could not bring himself to say a harsh word about corporate business.

On My Mind

Election A Logical Conclusion

By Ralph Ingersoll

The news that a newcomer Democrat in New Hampshire, campaigning on a "do something about it" theme, beat a Republican professional backed by our status-quo President seems to me not that he won so handily but that the winning itself made so much news.

Columnists, commentators, and politicians from coast to coast got so excited — and still seem to be — that you'd think there had been a major shift in the public's reaction to what's been happening in 1975.

Did they really think that Americans were insensitive to the continuing inflation in the prices of their necessities, callous to the misery of the mounting number of their countrymen unemployed, content with their government's handling of the energy shortage that looms over our future? So what was surprising about even a conservative New Englander casting the majority of their votes as they did: for a man who gave them his word that he'd do his damndest to do something about it?

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Hoover's Tricks On Dr. King

By Jack Anderson with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The FBI's undercover campaign to besmirch the late Dr. Martin Luther King was even more incredible than the recent Senate hearings revealed.

It began, as the testimony showed, with the late J. Edgar Hoover. The cantankerous FBI chief developed a boiling hatred for King during the turbulent 1960s.

Some suspect that Hoover became jealous of King's Nobel peace prize, an honor the old man had coveted for himself. Others say Hoover simply became convinced, altogether falsely, that the civil rights leader was a communist sympathizer.

From close associates of both antagonists, we have now pieced together more of the compelling story.

Early in the 1960s, the FBI began monitoring King's activities. Some of his hotel rooms were bugged. One of the tapes contained a replay of an uproarious party, which he had attended at Washington's old Willard Hotel.

The FBI director and his trusted sidekick, Clyde Tolson, conspired together to send this embarrassing tape to King's wife, Coretta. The idea disturbed the subordinates who were ordered to carry out the blackmail plot. But in those days, no one in the FBI dared to stand up to the formidable Hoover.

Upon Hoover's instructions, the tapes were doctored in the FBI lab to bring out King's voice, loud and clear. Then the tape was carefully cleaned of fingerprints or telltale evidence that might link it to the FBI.

The tape was packed in a seven-inch reel box, which was also sanitized of fingerprints. Hoover's orders were, as one aide recalls, to mail it "from a southern state" to Coretta King in Atlanta.

An FBI agent, unaware of the contents of the poisonous package, was dispatched by plane to Florida to mail it. This was the sole purpose of his plane trip.

The vindictive Hoover also ordered that a separate message, suggesting suicide, should be mailed to King himself. It was typed, according to one source, on an old typewriter, with a smudge, red-and-black ribbon.

The civil rights leader later speculated that Hoover got the suicide idea from reports that King as a child had tried to injure himself following the death of a beloved grandmother. Our FBI sources doubt, however, that Hoover knew about this childhood incident.

In any event, the diabolical message suggested that King had only 34 days to take the "one way out." The 34 days coincided with the date he was supposed to receive the Nobel prize in Oslo.

Clearly, the suicide suggestion and scurrilous tape were timed to hit King with a one-two punch. But the FBI had not reckoned with the enormous workload at King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference. For weeks, the group had been collecting tapes of King's speeches for posterity.

The FBI material, therefore, was buried in the pileup of tapes and mail. Dr. King showed up in Oslo, accepted the award and returned home, quite unaware that he had been invited by the FBI to kill himself.

As King's friends recall, it was Coretta who eventually opened the package from Florida. One friend has the impression that the letter was sent in the same package with the tape.

Coretta King played part of the scratchy, garbled tape and then called in her husband. King was aware that the FBI was trying to discredit him. He immediately concluded that both the tape and letter were the doing of the FBI.

Next day, he summoned some of his closest associates to his Atlanta offices. Among them were the Reverends Ralph Abernathy, Joseph Lowery and Andrew Young.

As they entered, King sighed: "You'd think the FBI would understand that we're trying to save America." The Nobel laureate showed his colleagues the letter. All agreed it was no mere crank note but a foolish FBI attempt to get King to kill himself. Young recalls that King chuckled grimly over the preposterousness of the scheme.

The group also listened carefully to the tape, which was often inaudible. But King's voice could be heard making an occasional ribald crack. There was also audible evidence of a sexual interlude. They agreed, however, that King was not involved in this portion of the tape.

Then the civil rights leader, speaking sorrowfully, said he had previously felt he could count on the FBI to protect his rights. But no longer, he said, could the FBI be trusted.

Footnote: We were the first to report on May 24, 1968, that the FBI was bugging and badgering Dr. Martin Luther King. We reported that the FBI, among other things, had spread stories about his sex life.

At the request of King's associates, we investigated the FBI's smear charges against him and published our findings on October 9. The Senate hearings have now confirmed our revelations.

A REMINDER: There are only a few days left to participate in our search for a bicentennial slogan. All entries must be postmarked before midnight, December 1. The best one will be adopted by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration. Send your slogans to SLOGANS USA, Box 1976, Washington, D.C.

White House Confirms Probe of Ford's Son

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House has confirmed that President Ford told the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) it could investigate rumors his son, Jack, bought cocaine from a drug dealer in Salt Lake City last year.

The investigation was closed when it was learned young Ford was not in the city at the time of the rumored sale. Deputy White House press secretary William Greener said the President told H. Stuart Knight, head of the Secret Service, to allow the Drug Enforcement Administration to conduct the investigation earlier this year.

First word of the investigation came Tuesday from syndicated columnist Jack Anderson on ABC's "Good Morning America."

According to Anderson, the DEA was "tipped off" that young Ford, one of the President's three sons, "had been seen buying cocaine from a known dealer in Salt Lake City."

Anderson said the tip was brought to Ford's attention. Greener said Ford received the information and told Knight to proceed with the investigation and the White House would not interfere in any way.

Beame Takes Action

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor Abraham Beame, responding to protests over prison conditions at Rikers Island, has ordered the assignment of 69 new guards, a delay in the closing of one jail and efforts to reopen another.

The mayor made his announcement Tuesday after meeting with leaders of the correction officers' union who presented him with 13 demands stemming from the recent 17-hour riot at Rikers Island.

Beame's six-point program was intended to ease overcrowding in the jail, which contributed to the outbreak. Some 1,700 rioting inmates held five guards hostages Sunday night and Monday.

In another development, Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola said he had requested federal funds to establish a court in the Rikers jail to eliminate the "heavy cost" of moving inmates to outside courts for purposes other than trial.

Beame suspended the closing of the Bronx House of Detention for a month and ordered city lawyers to ask U.S. District Judge Morris Laaker for permission to reopen the Manhattan Men's House of Detention.

Laaker ordered the prison closed several months ago because of what he described as inhuman conditions.

'Sweeping Review' Is Asked

NEW YORK (UPI) — The state agency investigating charges of sexual misconduct and other abuses at two drug rehabilitation centers has urged replacement of the chief of a state drug-abuse program.

State Investigation Commission Chairman David W. Brown Tuesday recommended a "sweeping review" of rehabilitation centers operated by the state Office of Drug Abuse Services, headed by Anthony Cagliostro.

Brown also suggested the possible closing of the two centers the commission investigated, the Ray Brook Drug Rehabilitation Center near Saranac Lake and the Otisville Rehabilitation Center near Middletown.

The SIC head said Cagliostro's "stewardship and his attitude fail to inspire confidence."

"I would certainly have no problem in concluding that the commissioner and his staff should be replaced" if the management at the other ODAS facilities was similar to what the commission found at Otisville and Ray Brook, Brown said.

Brown said the agency allowed "a shocking series of abuses of several different kinds" at the two centers. ODAS operates 10 similar facilities in the state, but they have not been inspected by the SIC.

"I think we can draw the reasonable inference that these same problems exist at the other centers," Brown said at the close of public hearings which began Nov. 17.

Cagliostro, reached at home for comment on the charges, was highly critical of the SIC and its investigation.

"From what I've heard and what I've seen, the SIC has blown some unfortunate incidents way out of proportion and is misleading the public into believing that these incidents are representative of life at the facilities," Cagliostro said. "That, I deny."

At the hearings, a former woman inmate at Ray Brook said she was repeatedly asked to perform sexual favors for staff members at the facility in return for small privileges.

She said homosexuality was widely practiced and that drugs or alcohol were used frequently by patients there. Similar charges were made by staff members and former inmates at Otisville.

Rep. Gilman Dismayed Over Delay in MIA Paris Meeting

MIDDLETOWN
Congressmen Benjamin A. Gilman (R-26th Dist.) said that he "regrets the delay" caused by the postponement by the Vietnamese of a scheduled Monday meeting by the House Select Committee on MIA's with Vietnam's officials in Paris but expressed optimism that "some good can still come from such a meeting which is being re-scheduled for December."

Select Committee Chairman Congressman G.V. Montgomery of Mississippi announced that "our meeting in Paris with Vietnamese officers has been postponed. I have just received a cable from Paris asking that we delay our trip until December in order that we may meet with Ambassador Von Van Sung of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam. The Ambassador is currently in Vietnam."

The House Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia was to meet on Monday with officials of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam and the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam.

"While I am disappointed that this last minute delay has forced a postponement of the meeting," Gilman said, "I still look forward to a December meeting with Ambassador Von Van Sung in order to try to resolve the MIA issue."

Gilman said that he was encouraged that "the Vietnamese government has shown a desire to proceed on a basis of consultation and discussion with the Legislative branch of government to try to resolve the problems surrounding the 1300 persons still missing in Southeast Asia."

The members of the Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia, in addition to Gilman and Montgomery, include: Richard Ottinger (New York, 24th Dist.); Patricia Schroeder (Colorado, 1st Dist.); Tom Harkin (Iowa, 5th Dist.); Jim Lloyd (California, 35th Dist.); John J. Moakley (Mass., 9th Dist.); Tennyson Guyer (Ohio, 4th Dist.); Paul McCloskey (California, 12th Dist.) and Henry B. Gonzalez (Texas, 21st Dist.).

Would Deny Sanctuary

world nations agreeing to the denial of sanctuary to any international terrorists.

Gilman noted that terrorism has been increasing at an alarming rate and a rate and agreed that a concerted effort is needed, with the United States taking a lead role in bringing about such a crackdown.

"We hope this bill will block out the few havens left for the perpetrators of so many violent barbaric acts," Gilman noted.

WASHINGTON, D.C.
Rep. Benjamin A. Gilman of Middletown, (R-26th Dist.) has supported a bill which calls on the President to seek an international convention to draft a treaty to deny sanctuary to international terrorists.

The measure, proposed by Rep. Lester L. Wolff, is the result of a meeting he, Rep. Gilman and several other representatives had last August with Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Miki.

The U.S. Congressmen were taking part in a Far Eastern study mission when they met with Prime Minister Miki, who stressed the importance of

Hearing Request Made

NEWBURGH
The Hudson River Valley Council (HRVC) has asked Orange County Executive Louis Mills to postpone public hearings on the environmental impact assessment report for Stewart Airport.

"This request is being made to allow all individuals and groups with a vital interest in the future of Stewart Airport adequate time to study the plan in order that informed and constructive comments on the report may be made," a council spokesman said.

"Because these hearings are the culmination of four years of anticipation this report and this issue deserve more careful examination than the allotted time period can possibly provide. We believe that inadequately prepared hearings are worse than no hearings at all.

"In the interest of constitutional due process, we have formally requested that these hearings be postponed to a later date."

HRVC, noting that it had received its first copies of the report on Nov. 20, asked that the scheduled Dec. 17 hearing be postponed to mid-January.

Attorney Won't Appeal

HILO, Hawaii (UPI) — An attorney says he will not appeal a judge's ruling in the case of Alice Cameron, whose life-sustaining respirator was ordered unplugged by a judge's order.

Ron Gaddis, a legal aid counsel assigned to represent the woman, said Tuesday he feels he does not have an "appealable case."

Gaddis said he believed the five doctors who agreed Miss Cameron was dead "had gone to extra efforts to be sure they were doing the right things and had conducted every conceivable test."

Dr. Maurice Nicholas, a Honolulu neurosurgeon who conducted two brain wave tests on the woman and found no sign of life, said Tuesday she was dead by modern standards, though in the "old definition" she could be considered alive.

Nichols said modern medical techniques can keep a person's heart and lungs functioning "for days" after the brain dies.

"Medically and morally," she was dead, Dr. Nicholas said.

Something to Smile About

Fred Lynn's wife, Dee Dee, has reason to smile and be proud of him—the Boston Red Sox rookie, who last season batted .331 with 105 RBI's and 21 homers to lead the lead in slugging, was named American League Rookie of the Year last month and capped that off by winning Most Valuable Player honors. Lynn is the first player to win both awards in the same year. (UPI)

A WORLD SERIES BEAUTY

What's For An Encore?

BOSTON (UPI) — What can Fred Lynn do for an encore to being named Most Valuable Player and Rookie of the Year in the American League?

The 23-year-old Lynn, who won those honors, already has made up a list. "I think the two big things I'd like to do next year are cut down on my number of strikeouts (95) and steal more bases," said the center fielder from El Monte, Calif., who batted .331 and drove in 105 runs last season in leading the Boston Red Sox into the World Series. "I think I stole something like 10 bases in 15 tries last season and I think I can do better than that."

Lynn, drafted in the second round in 1973 after an All America career at Southern California, also anchored the Red Sox' outfield with his outstanding defensive ability and strong throwing arm.

Yet he promises even greater plays next season after a twinch tick pad is installed along the outfield wall.

"I'm going to run into that wall all day now," he said.

The wall was responsible for the quietest moment of last season's wild sixth World Series game. Lynn crashed into the concrete after chasing a Ken Griffey fly and slumped limply to the ground. Eventually, he got up and played the rest of the game, despite a painful bruise of the tailbone.

"It feels fine now, though," said Lynn recently after having x-rays of the back taken.

Even with perfect health, Lynn will have difficulty repeating the fantasy season of 1975.

"It's not that I'm superstitious or believe in the sophomore jinx. It's just that next year everything is going to be tougher to achieve," said Lynn, who also hit 21 homers and scored 103 runs as a rookie. "Last season no one knew what to expect from me and the pitchers on the other teams didn't know me. Next year everyone is going to expect me to do the same things."

"But I'm not going to pressure myself to do better."

Lynn plans to prepare for the pressure of '76 by relaxing all winter. Presently en route to his West Coast home, Lynn will hibernate with friends until January, playing golf, basketball and lifting weights to stay in shape. He also will spend many a day around local lakes and ponds, fishing for the big ones.

"Fred would love to forget baseball in the winter," said his wife Dee Dee. "I honestly believe he loves fishing more than baseball."

A private person who endures rather than enjoys the limelight, Lynn loves the seclusion of quiet waters.

"I live two lives, a public and a private life," said Lynn. "But at all times I just try to be myself; I don't put on any facade. I'm not interested in a lot of publicity and having people all around me. I get my enjoyment between the (foul) lines and I get my enjoyment at home."

Right now Fred Lynn can go home and enjoy the two highest individual honors a rookie baseball player could achieve.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fred Lynn's storybook year for the Boston Red Sox was climaxed today when he became the first rookie in major league baseball history to be named his league's most valuable player.

The 23-year old native of Chicago, who batted .331, hit 21 homers and drove in 105 runs last season, was voted the American League award by the largest margin in the 45-year history of the balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America. He previously had been voted the American League's Rookie of the Year by the same association.

Lynn received 22 of a possible 24 first-place votes, with relief ace Rollie Fingers of the Oakland A's picking up the other two, and also was named No. 2 on two ballots for a total of 326 points. Slugger John Mayberry of the Kansas City Royals finished second with 157 points followed by Jim Rice, another Red Sox rookie, who had 154 points.

The 169-point margin was the largest in history, exceeding the 167½ point margin by which Joe Morgan of the Cincinnati Reds won this year's National League MVP award.

The only other rookie who ever came close to winning a MVP award was Pete Reiser of the 1941 Brooklyn Dodgers, who finished second behind teammate Dolph Camilli.

"I am very honored that the baseball writers have chosen me as their most valuable player of the American League," said Lynn when informed of the award. "It is the most prestigious award that a player can earn. To achieve this in my first season is a very pleasant surprise and a big thrill. For as long as I play in the major leagues, this year will be a very special one for me."

No question about that last statement.

Lynn's year transcended his statistics. An articulate but quiet person, he made contributions to the Red Sox that rivaled those made by such great players as Stan Musial, Joe DiMaggio and Ted Williams to their teams. He hit all types of pitching with equal efficiency and played the outfield with an easy ground-covering grace that defied comparison.

"I have to thank a few persons who helped me get where I am today," Lynn continued. "First and foremost, my father whose guidance and knowledge started me in the right direction. Secondly, my high school and college coaches, Dave Sadell and Rod De-deaux, whose expert teaching in the field of baseball gave me a solid foundation on which to build. I would also like to thank my Red Sox teammates and my wife, Dee Dee, for their help and inspiration all season."

Signed by scout Joe Stephenson in 1972 after an outstanding college career at Southern California, Lynn batted .259 for Bristol in 1973 and .282 for Pawtucket in 1974.

Bruins 4, Kings 2

Doug Gibson, recalled earlier in the day to replace the suddenly-departed Jean Ratelle, scored his first NHL goal to ignite Boston's triumph over Los Angeles. Ratelle, apparently unhappy over his trade from the New York Rangers to Boston, left to decide his future. Dave Forbes, Ken Hodge and Bobby Schmautz scored the other Bruin goals.

Fast Start for Dryden

Goalie Ken Dryden is off to his best start since 1972 and because of that, the Montreal Canadiens are evoking the winning image which has been their hockey heritage.

A year ago at this time, Dryden, coming off a season of self-imposed inactivity, was floundering along with an unimpressive 3.24 goals-against average. Not coincidentally, the once proud Canadiens were trailing the once expansionist Los Angeles Kings in the National Hockey League's Norris Division title chase.

Tuesday night, however, Dryden blocked 35 shots in shutting out the Atlanta

Flames 4-0. It was his fourth shutout in 16 games this season and lowered his goals-against average to less than 1.7 per game.

Meanwhile, the victory lifted the Canadiens' record to 14-4-3 and boosted them six points ahead of Los Angeles, which was losing to Boston.

Montreal Coach Scotty Bowman was asked if Dryden is playing better now than ever before.

"I couldn't say that. He's played some great hockey, you know," Bowman replied. "But he's hot as a pistol right now."

Dryden said the shutout against Atlanta was not his best game of the year.

Jean Wants Security

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jean Ratelle apparently wants job security from the Boston Bruins or will retire at the end of the year, says longtime friend and teammate Brad Park.

Ratelle, traded from the New York Rangers 19 days ago along with Park, left the Bruins Tuesday to discuss his future with his wife at their New York home. He was unavailable for direct comment but made it known before leaving for New York that he is unhappy with the Boston Bruins' new contract offer.

"It's not so much the money as other things," said cryptic Harry Sinden, the Bruins' managing director who received a phone call Tuesday from Ratelle's attorney saying the center was in New York.

Park, who drove Ratelle to the airport Tuesday morning, said his friend told him, "If they don't want to give me security, I won't bring my family up (to Boston). I will play till the end of the year, then retire."

Security to the 35-year-old Ratelle, a family man who wants a permanent home for his wife and children, would be a multi-year contract. He presently is in the final season of a four-year contract (at an estimated $200,000 per year) and apparently wants another multi-year pact from the Bruins before uprooting his family and buying a house in the Boston area. The Bruins, reportedly, have not assured Ratelle of a long-term contract.

Fred Lynn First Rookie MVP

rookie major league season, Lynn once explained, "in a way it's easier to hit in the majors because the pitchers throw the ball over the plate."

Rounding out the top 10 in the voting were Rollie Fingers and Reggie Jackson of the Oakland A's, Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles, Thurman Munson of the New York Yankees, George Scott of the Milwaukee Brewers, Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins and Ken Singleton of the Orioles.

The last Red Sox player to win the MVP award was Carl Yastrzemski, who won it in his Triple Crown year of 1967—the last time before this season that Boston won an American League pennant.

A Project in Trouble

Federal and Provincial police conducted a series of raids at the Olympic Village site in Montreal in what police say was an investigation into possible fraud in the construction of a key Olympic Games facility. Police said some of the raids were carried out Tuesday at the $90 million Olympic Village site, the two pyramid shaped, 980-unit apartment buildings scheduled to house 11,000 athletes at the '76 games. No arrests were made. (UPI)

More Trouble At Olympic Site

MONTREAL (UPI) — The strike-plagued, economical-troubled 1976 Summer Olympics site has been thrown into a new controversy, this time over possible fraud in construction of the Olympic Village.

Some 100 members of the Quebec Police Force and Royal Canadian Mounted Police made 38 raids Tuesday, seizing material from offices of contractors and the homes and offices of high Olympic officials.

"Our men went to different places with search warrants to find information, documents or people pertaining to an alleged fraud in the construction of the Olympic Village," a QPF spokesman said.

"No arrests have been made. We were not out to make any arrests—we were out to get some documents."

He said the search warrants were signed Monday following a months-long inquiry into complaints over the awarding of construction contracts for the Village.

Police would make no comment on reports the alleged fraud involved kickbacks involving some $30 million.

COJO Commissioner General Roger Rousseau said he had been told raids had been made at the home of COJO executive vice president Simon St. Pierre and the offices of Les Terrasses Zarolega, the building contractor for the Olympic Village.

Rousseau said when police arrived at the downtown headquarters of the Olympic Organizing Committee, he invited them to examine all the committee's records.

"I have opened the documents for them to look at," he said. "We want to cooperate completely with the investigation. Our doors are open."

The Olympic Village complex, located in Montreal's east end, is comprised of two pyramid-shaped, 980-unit apartment buildings which will house 11,500 athletes and team officials during the Games.

The Village complex was originally estimated to cost $30 million but the current forecast is $90 million. Construction started last December and it is scheduled for completion next May 17.

The Quebec government formally took over planning and supervision of construction of Olympic facilities last week after cost estimates for the 1976 Games soared over the $1 billion mark.

The original cost estimate for hosting the Games was $310 million and Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau had promised they would be self-financing through sales of coins and stamps, lotteries, broadcast rights and various fund-raising schemes.

The deficit for the Games is now forecast at over $600 million.

Carter Likes The Pressure

Fred Carter says he likes pressure situations and the Philadelphia 76ers believe him.

It was Carter's basket at the buzzer Tuesday night that gave Philadelphia a dramatic 109-108 victory over the Golden State Warriors.

"The play was to Freddie all the way," Philadelphia Coach Gene Shue said in the jubilant 76ers' dressing room. "Freddie hit a great shot."

Before Tuesday night, Golden State had beaten the 76ers six straight times in Philadelphia and the Warriors looked like they had their seventh in a row when they took a 108-107 lead after Charles Dudley hit two free throws with three seconds left.

After the 76ers called a time out, Carter took the inbound pass, fumbled the ball for a split second and then arched a 25-foot shot.

"The shot looked good as it headed toward the basket," Carter said. It swished through the net and the Sixers had their 10th win against five losses, good for first place in the NBA's Atlantic Division.

Seattle defeated New York 128-127, Houston beat Washington 100-89 and Cleveland downed Chicago 98-94 in other NBA games.

Kentucky topped Utah 125-123 in double overtime in the only American Basketball Association game of the night.

SuperSonics 128, Knicks 127

Tom Burleson scored six points in overtime and a game high of 35 to give the Sonics their victory over New York. With Seattle leading 124-123 and 1:43 left, Burleson gave the Sonics a three-point edge with a dunk shot. Bruce Seals then clinched the victory for Seattle with a goal with 51 seconds to go.

Rockets 100, Bulls 89

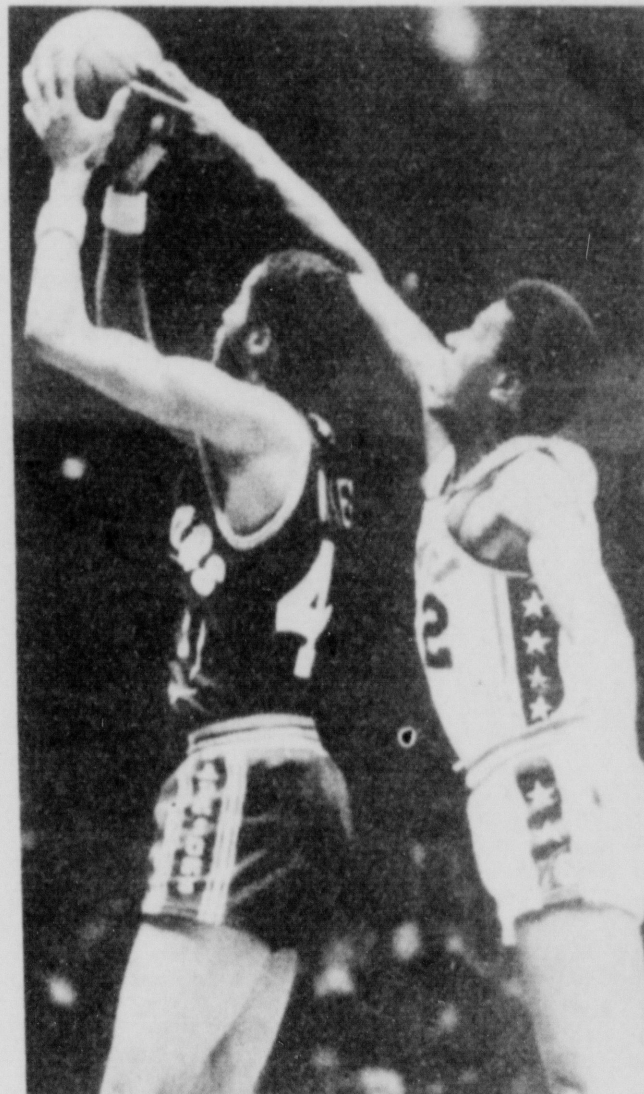

Calvin Murphy scored 32 points and Mike Newlin added 28 for Houston, which dealt Washington its sixth loss in 13 games. Elvin Hayes led Washington with 28 points while Wes Unseld and Phil Chenier had 14 each.

Cavaliers 98, Bulls 94

Jim Chones scored 23 points and Cleveland held off a fourth-period rally to hand Chicago its ninth loss in a row. Bulls guard Norm Van Lier led all scorers with 28 points.

Colonels 125, Stars 123

Artis Gilmore scored 45 points, including 21 in the last period, for his greatest pro game as Kentucky beat Utah. The Colonels scored five points in the last 54 seconds of the first overtime to tie the score.

The Long Arm

Golden State Warrior's Jamaal Wilkes is about to have his shot blocked by Philadelphia 76ers' Coniel Norman in the second quarter at the Spectrum Tuesday. (UPI)

Monticello's New President Planning No Major Changes

By Dorothy Narel

MONTICELLO

Any thoughts of retirement in sunny Florida for S. Harvey Fosner, former executive vice president, general manager and counsel for Roosevelt Raceway in Westbury, N.Y., went out the window when he received distress signals recently from friends at Monticello Raceway. They were holding down the fort in the wake of their own board president's indictment for using track funds for personal reasons.

Fosner, who met with the media Tuesday afternoon at Monticello, gave every indication of not only "taking the bull by the horns" but emphasized that his would be a tight ship with no administrative changes. He also stressed that any misunderstanding about the raceway on the part of the public "will be changed."

"This track has moved into dynamic dimensions with many new innovations and I do not make changes just to make changes. This has been a successful operation," Fosner said. His plans include meeting with each department head and not only working closely with them but "depending upon them to assume the prerogatives of their own departments" because we intend to move in all directions.

Fosner who has had many years experience in labor-management matters, is no stranger to Monticello Raceway. As Milton Kutsher, chairman of the Monticello board's executive committee, said: "Harvey was instrumental in the inception of this track. He was a wonderful counsel in setting it up and has been a friend throughout the years."

Fosner promised the media facts. "I have never double-talked any newspaperman or woman. You will get the facts. This race track deserves to be recognized as a darn good operation. I hope you play fair."

It was Fosner's opinion that honorable, decent men of the community have served Monticello Raceway and that the confidence of the public must be maintained.

The only time there was even a suggestion of deviating from his straight-forward delivery, was when this newspaper asked if he (Fosner) felt justice had been served in the case of Leon Greenberg indicted on a charge of using track funds to pay most of the expenses of his son's 1970 bar mitzvah.

"It is really improper for me to make any comments but I want you to know that my emotions and guts have been twisted and tied. Leon Greenberg was my protege. Leon made a great deal of friends and some enemies. Is that not the price we pay for being in the public eye?"

Fosner explained that on innumerable occasions where he felt justice "had to be done" for anyone, he offered his services to those in need—free of charge. "I have made the same offer to Leon," he said.

On the subject of an entertainment factor as a formula for the race track, Fosner gave every indication it would be continued. "Sullivan County is a resort area with a huge entertainment atmosphere. That formula has been tried here and is successful whereas it could be disastrous elsewhere. John Q. Public is the one who has the commanding voice. It he doesn't want it—it will be dropped."

Rockland Community College opened its basketball season Tuesday on a positive note. The Rockets took on Sullivan CC in a Mid Hudson Conference battle and handed the previously unbeaten Generals a 77-51 setback.

Tony Michella, a 6-6 veteran, went inside for 32 points to pace the Rockets' attack, but it was good balance and good defense that beat Sullivan. The Generals, who came into the game 2-0 in the MHC and 3-0 overall, were held to 23 points in the first half. Only Al

Not Too Bad

A dog's life isn't all bad—not if you consider the treatment 'Hexi' a 12-year-old dachshund receives. When it gets around bed time, he is tucked in for the night, then comes a yawn and finally to sleep. However, when its time for bath, 'Hexie' hides under the bed. (UPI)

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be very tactful today in handling people who are helping you, but who are not really obligated to do so. You could rub them the wrong way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're still very prone today to take foolish risks with your resources. Be very wary of all things speculative. Stick to the blue chips.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If there is an unnecessary tempest at home today, chances are the blame can be traced to you. Don't sound off without thinking.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're very easily irritated today, but you're not likely to tell the real cause of your frustration. If you don't, nothing can be resolved.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't let an overenthusiastic friend sell you a bill of goods on a pet project. It could cost you plenty.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're going to let someone set the pace for you, rather than determine your own speed. Unfortunately, your stride and theirs aren't in harmony.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't talk about your ideas prematurely today or discuss them with one who isn't in a position to judge objectively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Just because you know a person socially is no reason to deal with them in a business sense. In fact, today scrupulously avoid such involvement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It would be a mistake today to be too self-serving at another's expense. This person would be very irritated if he felt he was being used.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) To save money today, you may tackle something that's better left to experts. You could wind up with a larger bill than anticipated.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Normally you're easy to get along with. Today, however, you're apt to behave in a manner that others could find offensive.

Your Birthday
Nov. 27, 1975

This coming year you'll be better off if you handle important projects unencumbered by partners. Do what has to be done on your own, for best results.

Jean Adams
TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Ph.D.

PROPOSITION: (Q.) My Uncle Rob asked me to go out to dinner with him. He told me my boy friend, Chuck, would be there, but he wasn't. Uncle Rob told me he wanted me to come over to his apartment with him. He told me he could show me a good time.

I told him I didn't want to and when he insisted I told him no, flatly. I told him I thought he was sick. He told me if I ever tell anyone about this he will break Chuck and me up for good. He told me he will call me again soon and I had better accept or else.

I just don't know what to do. I love Chuck and we hope to be married some day.—17 in New York.

(A.) If you haven't already done so, tell Chuck now what your Uncle Rob has done so far and of his new threat.

If Uncle Rob calls back, tell him no. Tell him if he doesn't leave you alone you will tell your parents. And if he doesn't leave you alone after that, tell them.

BOSSED: (Q.) My cousin came to live with us. She is 18. The problem is she thinks she owns me. She bosses me around and yells at me. She thinks she's right because she's older. I am only 12.

I can't tell Mom or Dad because I don't want her to be in trouble, and they wouldn't even listen, for that matter. I need help.—

Miserable in Alabama
(A.) If you had an older sister, your parents would have rules about what she and you do to each other. There should be similar rules for your cousin and you. Ask them to have a family conference so this can be discussed and some ground rules set up. You are right to be concerned about your cousin's feelings, but you also have to look out for yourself. Give your parents the facts. They'll listen.

Police Beat

Auto Accident Brings 3 Deaths

EAST FISHKILL
Three Westchester County residents were killed Tuesday afternoon when the car in which they were riding ran off the Taconic State Parkway in southern Dutchess County and slammed into a tree.

The victims were identified as Anthony J. Amodio, 46; his son, Vincent A. Amodio, 18; and Alexander F. Gold, all of Scarsdale.

Dutchess County Sheriff's Deputies said all three victims were ejected from the vehicle and they could not determine who was driving at the time of the crash.

The three men died a short time after arrival at Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie.

Crash Victims Die

Meanwhile, in other area police matters:

James C. Herring, 21, of Milton, who was critically injured in an Oct. 18 car crash on Route 9W in Marlboro, died Monday at Vassar Brothers Hospital. David M. Thomas, 22, of Beacon, who was a passenger in Herring's car in the two-vehicle collision, remains in critical condition at the hospital.

William Hajek, 73, of Cairo, who was critically injured in a Nov. 17 one-car Thruway crash died recently at Greene County Memorial Hospital in Catskill.

Uninjured in Blast

Workers at JA's Garage in High Falls escaped uninjured Tuesday afternoon in an explosion which damaged two rooms at the garage. High Falls Fire Chief Peter Zegel said the explosion occurred as workers were attempting to start a car by pouring gas or ether into the carburetor. There was an accumulation of fumes, he said.

Theft of Liquor

Ellenville State Police arrested Walter Swartwood, 22, and Carlos Santiago, 23, both of Kerhonkson Tuesday night on charges of third degree burglary. Police said the two were caught allegedly taking a quantity of liquor from the Granit Hotel in Accord.

Suspicious Malden Blaze

Malden-West Cmp fire officials termed a fire which damaged one room in a vacant bungalow on Main Street in Malden Tuesday afternoon as "suspicious." The blaze apparently started in a mattress, firemen said. Ownership of the building was not definitely known.

Car Theft Charges

Kingston detectives arrested Michael S. Kidwell, 19, of Vienna, Va., and Robert Longendyke, 24, of Sterling, Va., on Tuesday on warrants charging them with second degree grand larceny. Police said the two allegedly stole a car from Kingston and were caught in Pennsylvania. They were returned from Pennsylvania Tuesday.

County Sales Tax Hike Being Considered

By Jon Powers

KINGSTON

A one per cent increase in the Ulster County sales tax — which could generate more than $4 million in additional revenues in 1976 alone — may help to reduce the estimated 50 per cent hike in county property taxes threatened by the tentative 1976 budget.

Some Ulster County lawmakers, on both sides of the political aisle, are seriously considering a proposal to hike the county sales tax from one to two per cent to help offset a projected $15 million increase in the county budget for 1976.

Approval of such a measure would increase the sales tax that county shoppers pay on certain taxable items from five to six per cent. The City of Kingston, with a two per cent sales tax of its own, would go from seven to eight per cent, the maximum currently allowed in New York State. The State sales tax is four per cent.

"It is something that we will definitely have to look at," said Louis M. Klein (D-Dist. 6), the legislature's newly-elected minority leader, "it could increase revenues by as much as $4.2 million, and leave us with about $10 million that would have to be raised by taxes, just about the same amount as this year."

The tentative 1976 budget calls for a total tax levy of about $16.9 million, compared to $9.2 million this year. Klein, and a number of other lawmakers, are confident that the proposed $2 million contingency fund to protect against possible default by New York City will be deleted by the time the final budget figure comes up for a vote on Dec. 20. That would leave a tax levy of about $14.9 million.

The estimated $4.2 million that Klein believes would be raised by a one per cent increase in the county sales tax would lower the tax levy to about $10.7 million. He, and others, feel that even a 16 per cent tax increase would be more palatable to property owners in the county than the 50 per cent increase residents are faced with now.

Klein said Tuesday that a "vast majority" of the taxpayers he has talked to recently favor the sales tax increase primarily because part of the burden would be shifted to non-residents of the county.

"If a person is paying $400 in property taxes now his increase in 1976 will be $200," said Klein, "but with an additional one per cent sales tax, that person would have to spend $20,000 on purchases during the year to match that $200 increase. I don't think there are very many people in the county who spend that kind of money."

Klein's suggestion has found some cautious support among other county legislators. "I don't think the idea is out of line," said S. Robert Kelder (R-Dist. 5) "it would spread the revenues out over a larger tax base. The resort business is a big one in Ulster County and I don't think the tourists would really notice an extra one per cent tax. In the end, it would amount to quite a lot of money."

"I think we're going to have to take a strong look at an increase in the sales tax," said James F. Gilpatric (D-City), "it's the method that would least penalize our citizenry. I don't think very many people will stand for the type of property tax increase we're faced with now."

Gilpatric raised another significant point. Next year — 1976 — should be a banner year for tourism in historic Ulster County, and the sales tax revenues could be substantial. In addition, Ulster County is strategically located between the New York metropolitan area and Montreal, Canada — the site of the 1976 Summer Olympics. "There are going to be a lot of people passing through the county next year," said Gilpatric, "and they'll be leaving behind a lot of money."

There is one major complication: any sales tax increase must first be OK'd by the New York State Legislature which is, itself, considering an increase in the state sales tax as part of the New York City bail-out plan. Klein said he is working with Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101) to determine how a county sales tax increase would be received in Albany.

Whether or not the sales tax plan gains momentum, county lawmakers are continuing their search for excess fat in the proposed budget. An executive budget session Friday reportedly helped eliminate some $250,000 in appropriations, but some legislators are looking to make deeper and more significant cuts.

"I'm thinking seriously about recommending that the budget be sent back to the department heads with instructions that they eliminate another five per cent," said Stephen G. Hyatt (R-Dist. 2), "it wouldn't be a very popular move but I think it can be done. It's surprising how much can be cut when it has to be cut."

George Barthel (D-Dist. 7) agrees. "I think it's a fine idea," he said, "some departments may be cut to the bone, but I think many could do a little more trimming."

The legislature isn't expected to meet formally again until after the Dec. 1 public hearing (7 p.m. in the county office building). The lawmakers can be reasonably confident that a number of unbelieving taxpayers will be on hand with some lucid suggestions of their own.

By Plane or By Boat?

An uncommon site occurred on the Schuylkill River in Philadelphia on Tuesday when a seaplane landed. Here the airplane takes off as it passes a sailboat. The pilot, Walter Molechek of New York City landed the plane to see if city officials would allow him to make use of the river again to drop off passengers. (UPI)

Structural Cracks Close UCCC Library

STONE RIDGE

"The very heart and center of the academic program here at Ulster County Community College will be its library. The library will serve as a learning-resources center—and will be central to all campus academic activities."

That was the bright promise of UCCC's board of trustees in the spring of 1966 when the Stone Ridge campus was taking shape on its 82 acres of gently sloping meadow land and apple orchards.

The college's Macdonald DeWitt Library, a handsome, modern, two-story, brick building opened in the fall of 1967. This week—and only eight years later—the promise of the apple orchards turned sour.

Ulster County Community College, through its president, Robert T. Brown, announced tersely today that UCCC is closing the library immediately "to permit further study of a structural concern." With no San Andreas fault to take the blame, cracks had been discovered in the building by workers in the process of rearranging the book collection. And, on the advice of a consulting engineer, Brown said the Board of Trustees had approved the temporary closing of the library as a safety measure.

For the time being, at least, the library will cease to be the "center" of the college as library facilities will be fanned out in other campus locations. While no college spokesman felt qualified to suggest the root causes of the structural cracks, Brown said the decision to close the building had been made after consulting engineer Alfred Scarperi of Kingston had been called in to look at the cleaves in the walls.

And while it had been ascertained that the building was "in no immediate danger of falling down," it was announced that "a more thorough look must be taken" at the structural problems just discovered. While analysis of the problem and work towards a permanent solution continues, the college will be closed for the next four days for Thanksgiving recess. To accommodate students and community residents who utilize the library, plans for temporary facilities will be announced as soon as possible.

Those plans could include giving students greater access to area public and college libraries.

But other questions will doubtless be asked as study and analysis of the cracks that broke the library's back continues. Some of those questions will undoubtedly be posed to the Robbie Construction Company, identified by one college spokesman as the library's builder. The firm has apparently ceased operations as a contractor since that job was completed.

Squeaky Jury Still Out

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The jury in the Lynette Fromme case has given strong indications it was deadlocked on the charge she tried to assassinate President Ford. Today was its third day of deliberation.

The eight-woman, four-man panel was stymied Tuesday night despite a key change of instructions by the judge that was supposed to make it easier to reach a verdict on a lesser charge of assaulting the President.

Assault against a President of the United States is punishable by up to 10 years in prison with parole possible after three years. The attempted assassination charge carries a maximum life sentence with parole possible after 15 years.

Rebellion Is Crushed

LISBON, Portugal — Progovernment commandos overwhelmed a rebel military police regiment today in a pitched battle behind the presidential palace, crushing one of the last remnants of a leftist rebellion that had brought Portugal to the brink of civil war.

The commandos attacked as a progovernment column of 14 tanks moved into position to assault a leftist light artillery regiment near the international airport. The artillerymen appealed for a truce and negotiations.

Atrocity Trial Begins

DUESSELDORF, West Germany — A former New York City housewife went on trial today for allegedly participating in the murder of 250,000 Jews in a Nazi concentration camp during World War II.

Mrs. Hermine Braunsteiner Ryan and 12 other persons were charged with murder and other violent crimes against Jewish prisoners in a concentration camp at Maidanek, Poland, between 1941 and 1944.

The judge said a 14th defendant failed to appear for the trial because he was taking a psychiatric examination.

An Appeal for Peace

BEIRUT — U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim appealed today "in the interest of world peace" for an end to the fierce religious warfare that has racked Lebanon for seven months.

Heavy street fighting in the capital diminished during the night with the appearance of 300 army commandos ordered by the government to "fight the gunmen in their own way."

Waldheim flew to Beirut today for a brief visit en route to Damascus, where he will discuss Syrian and Israeli views on extending the U.N. peacekeeping mandate in the Golan Heights.

Five Indians Indicted

RAPID CITY, S.D. — Four Indian men have been indicted by a federal grand jury for last summer's slayings of two FBI agents on the troubled Pine Ridge Indian Reservation.

Those indicted Tuesday included James Theodore Eagle, 20, the man the two agents were seeking when they were shot to death in what the FBI said was an ambush June 26.

A five-hour shootout between lawmen and Indians followed. One Indian was killed but the rest escaped.

Firemen Winning Battle

GLENDAL, Calif. — Firemen appeared to be slowly winning a see-saw battle today with two huge brush fires that blazed across 68,000 acres and gnawed into the suburbs of Los Angeles, destroying or badly damaging 43 homes.

The biggest blaze, the Tujunga fire covering 45,500 acres, was more than 50 per cent contained.

The second major fire, on the slopes of Mt. Baldy some 30 miles east of the Tujunga blaze in the Angeles National Forest, was only 30 per cent contained. It flamed through 10,000 acres Tuesday, bringing the total acreage consumed to 23,000.

Carlos' Decree Denounced

MADRID, Spain — Spain's largest outlawed opposition party today denounced as inadequate the limited pardon of criminal and political prisoners announced by King Juan Carlos I in the first goodwill gesture of his reign.

The decree Tuesday was Juan Carlos' first formal attempt to win popular support at home and abroad. It came only two days before foreign chiefs of state were to gather for festivities celebrating his ascent to the throne.

PUPPY CREASED ACROSS THE HEAD

Hunters Practice on Dogs, Veterinarian Protests

STONE RIDGE

The shooting last Sunday was the trigger that caused a Stone Ridge veterinarian to shoot off a letter of protest to the Freeman about "so-called sportsmen" who practice their marksmanship on dogs and cats.

Dr. Andre Ross has been a practicing vet in the area for ten years, three in Stone Ridge and seven before in High Falls. Every small game and deer season she gets the bullet or shotgun wounded pets in, five already this season.

At 2 p.m. Sunday, the seventh day of deer season, a three-year-old beagle named "Puppy" was escorting two 13-year-old girls on their way back home from returning a little boy to his home down the road.

As the two girls entered the Douglas Trowbridge home two shots rang out, one entering Puppy's shoulder while the other dug a furrow across the top of his head. He was less than 100 feet from the door.

The dog was rushed to Dr. Ross's office by the owners where the doctor was able to stitch what was left of the top of Puppy's head back together and treat the shoulder. She stated as we viewed the shaken dog in her office, "A quarter inch deeper and he would have been killed." Bullet fragments remain in the dog.

She is sure most of the pet shootings she treats are not accidents but deliberate target practice. Many have been shot more than once, such as Puppy. Besides, she says, "How could you mistake a beagle for a deer?"

Some other incidents Dr. Ross has dealt with this fall:

• During SMALL game season Nov. 6 a 150-pound great dane wearing a red bandana received wounds in the back of his neck and his jaw while playing in his owner's yard in West Hurley.

The same great dane had been shot a year before in its other jaw, losing the sight of an eye.

as well.

• A tiger cat had his hind leg blown off with a gun in Olivebridge.

• A pointer was wounded in its abdomen in Stone Ridge.

• A young shepherd dog was shot dead through the heart in New Paltz.

Some other cases that stand out in her mind include a stray dog shot in the shoulder eight years ago that was brought into her office. High impact hunting shells tend to shatter bone, she noted. You generally have to amputate the leg. After this operation, she kept the stray for a long time and finally placed an advertisement in the Freeman offering a three-legged dog "Five people called up," she remembered offering it a home.

And perhaps the nastiest result of this penchant for torture she has seen was a dog who had been shot full of rock salt from a shotgun. The particles festered under its skin and became inflamed all over its body.

What can be done about such shootings? Immediately the pet owner should try to keep the pet indoors or near the house during hunting season, she said. "If they are ever fortunate enough to catch one of these hunters in the act, they should do everything possible to see that the killer is reprimanded," she advised.

Dr. Gilbert Hoppenstedt, president of the 12-member Ulster County Veterinary Society, shares offices with two other vets south of Kingston on Route 32. He said his practice normally gets "about two or three" hunting related shootings a season, plus other miscellaneous cases throughout the year. "I would be exaggerating if I were to say we get a lot," he commented.

Of this Dr. Ross snorted, "He's a hunter. He goes out West after moose or something every year. I don't see how a veterinarian can hunt."

Drive Begins Tonight

KINGSTON

On this eve of Thanksgiving, Kingston residents will be asked to make the holiday more meaningful through an expression of their generous impulses. Those fire sirens that will sound tonight throughout the city at 6 o'clock will herald the season of gift giving this year in a unique manner.

For tonight is "Beggars' Night," and those who have reason to be thankful are urged to contribute to those who need help. And community-wide self-help is needed to repair the ravages of fire at the Children's Library—a fire that left the building on Broadway unuseable, destroyed many books, materials and records.

As volunteers go door-to-door tonight with specially marked canisters, those eager to give are asked to leave their house lights on from 6 to 9 p.m. And to tune in from 7 to 9 o'clock to WKNY, which will be broadcasting live from the Freeman in a telephone-thru aimed at eliciting further pledges. By calling the Freeman at 331-5002, residents who are staying home tonight to get a head start on their Thanksgiving dinner can join in the "Beggars' Night" fund raising campaign.

Hate Fringe Blamed For Boston Tensions

The federal judge overseeing Boston school desegregation says a "hate-mongering fringe" is trying to whip up racial tensions, and in Cleveland, the NAACP charged segregation is perpetuated by letting transfer pupils attend the school of their choice.

Classes met in New Haven, Conn., Tuesday for the first time in two weeks, as teachers ended their contract strike and headed for classrooms — some from jail cells.

Federal District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. said Tuesday a small group of South Boston residents want to maintain tension between black and white students at South Boston High, scene of recently renewed racial flareups.

"I know there is a hate-mongering fringe," Garrity said. "It is positively not truly representative of the South Boston community."

School officials must "insulate the school from the opposition which surrounds it," he said.

The comments came in hearings, continuing today, on a motion brought by the NAACP to close the high school. The motion was submitted on behalf of black parents who alleged abuse of black students at the school was increasing.

The NAACP accused two teachers of discriminating against blacks and asked they be dismissed. Most of the attention was centered on James Scalese, 41, who allegedly climbed on a desk and imitated a monkey to ridicule blacks.

"He was just fixing the flaps of his coat," said another teacher, Rosalie Packard, whose classroom is across the hall from Scalese's.

In Cleveland, where the NAACP is suing to desegregate the city's schools, William Lamson, an NAACP population expert, traced the history of some of the 60 optional attendance zones the school board has authorized since 1940. Chief Federal Judge Frank Battisti, hearing the case without a jury, recessed the trial until next Tuesday.

NAACP lawyer Louis Lucas said optional zones also contributed to segregating neighborhoods.

"They operated as a safety valve to help white parents get time to move out of a changing neighborhood," he said. "The optional zones signified that this was the area that was going black next."

Battisti could order busing for Cleveland if he finds the discrimination charges have merit.

About 20,000 New Haven school children were back in class Tuesday without incident at the end of a strike in which 90 teachers were jailed for refusing to report to work.

New Haven teachers were fined $250,000 and had to promise not to stage any further strikes for a year.

The 1,200-member union said national and state teachers organizations would pay the fine.

Morocco Claims Coastal Enclaves

RABAT, Morocco (UPI) — Morocco, assured of taking over the mineral-rich Spanish Sahara, has now staked out a claim to Spain's only remaining enclaves on Morocco's coast — Ceuta and Melilla.

Morocco's King Hassan met with reporters Tuesday and shrugged off Algerian opposition to the Nov. 14 agreement under which Madrid agreed to hand the Spanish Sahara over to Morocco and Mauritania.

Sipping mineral water and puffing filter-tipped cigarettes, Hassan said he would not be surprised if Algerian President Houari Boumedienne started a war over Morocco and Mauritania.

But he did not appear worried and said Moroccans were not sure the Algerian leader enjoyed any popular support.

Hassan said his regime will step up its drive to control Ceuta and Melilla on Morocco's northern coast as soon as Spain gains control over British-held Gibraltar across the seven-mile strait guarding the western entrance to the Mediterranean.

"The day Spain has Gibraltar, Morocco will necessarily have Ceuta and Melilla for no power will be able to allow Spain both locks on the same straits," he said.

Ceuta, with a population of 87,000, is a fortified city facing over the mineral-rich Spanish Sahara, has now staked out a claim to Spain's only remaining enclaves on Morocco's coast — Ceuta and Melilla.

Winter Prelude

A dusting of snow etched a pre-holiday landscape throughout the Hudson Valley overnight.

The winter prelude, laced with artistry, stayed off the roads for the most part. However, state police issued a warning to motorists, advising caution.

The Thanksgiving Day forecast carries an 80 per cent chance of precipitation, probably in the form of rain. While that may cause the winter daydreams, it should prove more viable for holiday travelers.

MONTOUR FALLS Captain Robert H. Priest, training officer in the Kingston Fire Department, and Lieutenant Jerry Howard Jr. of Ulster Hose Company 5 completed the Fire Apparatus Maintenance Course at the Academy of Fire Sciences in Montour Falls.

The course is intended to improve the capability of individual fire departments to more properly maintain and adjust the pumps on their fire apparatus.

Settle for Millions In 1971 Mishap

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three U.S. sailors injured when a defective steam valve ruptured during a 1971 cruise and the families of five others killed in the incident have settled for a total $4.2 million in damages.

The settlement, granting the plaintiffs sums ranging from $170,000 to $1 million, was reached Tuesday with the Lockheed Ship Building Corp. of Seattle, Wash., the Walworth Valve Corp. of Greensburg, Pa. and the federal government.

The settlement came as the case was about to be tried in Brooklyn Federal Court. The government was not named as a defendant in the suit but agreed to contribute $600,000.

The case stemmed from a June 28, 1971 accident which occurred aboard the USS Trenton as it was cruising off Guantanamo Bay, Cuba on its maiden voyage.

According to papers filed by the plaintiffs in the suit, a defective valve ruptured during the cruise, filling the engine room of the 8,000-ton amphibious assault ship with steam.

Five men were killed and three others seriously burned.

An attorney for one of the plaintiffs, Melvin Block, said the accident occurred because

Lawmakers Still Face New Taxes

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — State lawmakers, having acted on a $205 million tax package for New York City residents, must still face Gov. Hugh L. Carey's requests for $872 million in new state taxes.

State taxes will not be on the agenda when the special session resumes Dec. 3, but they will surely dominate the behind-the-scenes activities.

Approval of the city tax package late Tuesday night was the next-to-last piece of a financial mosaic that Gov. Hugh L. Carey and state leaders hoped would keep New York City from default.

Leaders were hopeful, and privately optimistic, that the final piece — federal loan guarantees to ensure the city's ability to borrow money to fill in the gaps — would be provided by President Ford.

"The ball is in the park of the President," Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut said after the 12-hour legislative day. "We have done our share, now the challenge is, will he do his?"

Steingut said the agenda next week will include proposals that New York City employees live in the city and a merger of the state's April presidential primary and regular September primary into a single election in June.

"And," Steingut added, "I feel in the ensuing days, there will be additions to that calendar."

Senate Majority Leader Warren M. Anderson managed to have the issue of state and city taxes separated during the first 10 days of the special session because he was anxious that upstaters not link the two issues.

Carey has insisted against the objections of Republican lawmakers that the state is heading for a $600-$700 million deficit unless drastic cuts are taken to either cut spending or boost revenues.

The first problem will be to balance the state revenue figures for December against projections of state spending and the general economy for the remaining four months of the state fiscal year to come up with a gap figure that all can agree with.

Then, according to the blueprint laid out by Carey, possible cuts will be examined and the difference will be made up with new taxes.

Most of the new taxes for New York City residents will be effective on Jan. 1.

The program includes a $75 million boost in the city income tax, a $45 million increase in the levy on bank profits, plus a series of so-called nuisance taxes that account for the rest of the $205 million.

A $10 increase in the city's $15 auto registration fee was rejected at the last minute by stubborn Assemblymen, who last Saturday had nearly scuttled the tax package.

However, leaders averted what might have been disaster for the package by doubling the proposed bank tax increase to make up the $15 million lost from the auto fee boost.

Final approval of the package was also delayed for several hours when a hitch developed in expanding by $200 million the ceiling on the amount that the Municipal Assistance Corp. could borrow for the city to pay for operating expenses.

Assembly Minority Leader Perry B. Duryea objected that, as written, the bill would have made the change permanent, instead of a one-time advance to help the city meet its payrolls and expenses over the next few weeks.

Lawmakers wanted to cast

the final vote until a new bill could be drafted.

Most of the 13 bills were approved by comfortable margins in the Assembly, with opposition coming from Republicans and a few Democrats.

In the Senate, the margins were as close as a single vote on some of the bills, with dissent coming from several New York City lawmakers of both parties and upstate GOP legislators.

Assembly Tax Talk

The Assembly began debate on the $205 million tax package for New York City Tuesday in Albany. One of the lead-off speakers was Willis Stephens (R-Brewster) who said he would support passage of the new taxes. (UPI)

Those Photos Show Something

PASADENA, Calif., (UPI)—The engineer who used space agency computer techniques to improve underwater photos from Scotland's Loch Ness is sure the pictures show "something" in the lake, but do not prove the existence of its legendary monster.

Alan Gillespie of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, an arm of NASA, said Tuesday he performed the computer enhancement on photos taken by Robert Rines of Boston.

"There seems to be something there in the lake," Gillespie said.

"But we don't know if it's a genuine animal or not. After many, many hours of studying these pictures, I haven't found the slightest evidence of fraud. In my opinion Rines is sincere, serious and honest about this whole affair."

Rines believes the photos may show the "Loch Ness monster," the existence of which has been debated for centuries. There has been speculation the loch contains a number of plesiosaurs, water-dwelling dinosaurs thought to have been extinct for 70 million years.

Gillespie's specialty in the laboratory is computer enhancement of photos of planets, such as Mars and Mercury, taken by far-ranging NASA spacecraft. The computer process makes visible the details that register on film but are too subtle to be perceived by the unaided human eye. He was allowed to use the laboratory's equipment on his own time to aid Rines.

"There was no computerized air brushing of the data," he said.

Gillespie worked on two pictures taken by cameras, equipped with strobe lights, that Rines stationed in the murky waters of the loch. Rines has said he will make public the pictures at a scientific symposium in Edinburgh, Scotland, in two weeks.

Los Angeles Times science writer George Alexander, allowed to see the photos, described them as "a confused — and confusing — jumble of dots, splotches and blurred shapes in tones of white, black and gray, mostly gray."

"One photograph shows what could be construed as a large light-colored body against a black background with two triangular fins, or flippers, sticking straight down from the torso and a long curving neck emerging from the top of the torso," Alexander wrote.

"At the end of the neck is a grotesque object — a head? — with features that could be imagined as open jaws, an eye and bony growths."

Gillespie said the photos are difficult to interpret because in one, the object is about 19 feet from the camera, and dim, and in the other it is too close for perspective. "It becomes a version of the story of the blind men trying to describe an elephant by feeling the different parts," he said.

Dinner in the Jail; 'Something's Missing'

Inmates of Cook County Jail will celebrate Thanksgiving Day by devouring 2,600 pounds of turkey — but there'll be no drumsticks.

All bones more than 1½ inches long are considered potential weapons and will be removed before the holiday feast is served.

Outside prison walls, Americans will gorge themselves with turkey — drumsticks and all. There'll be scores of parades — including Macy's annual Thanksgiving extravaganza in New York City.

For the more adventurous, there's a marathon run from Hollywood to Las Vegas.

The "life begins at 60 and 70 super marathoners" took to the road today for their annual Thanksgiving 300-mile run between the two cities. The runners, who describe themselves as "naughty old male chauvinists," range in age from 61 to 76.

This year, they'll have some competition. The "Marathonettes" — girls and women ages 16 to 44 — will race the men to Las Vegas.

For some, it will be a special Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Melanie DeWitt of Des Moines, Iowa, and 15 other senior citizens will join Gov. and Mrs. Robert Ray in festivities at the chief executive's mansion.

"I don't really worry about the menu," said Mrs. DeWitt. "but I know it's going to be the thrill of my life."

Doña Vircol will have her "happiest Thanksgiving" Thursday night when she is reunited with her husband.

Romanian officials allowed Mrs. Vircol, 37, and her son to come to the United States on Thanksgiving of 1972 to the bedside of her dying father, exiled Romanian poet Vasile Postelnicu. He died Dec. 6, 1972.

But Romanian officials ordered her husband Alexis, 39, to remain behind.

After her father's death, Mrs. Vircol decided to remain and fight for her husband's release.

For three years she fought for Alexis' release. Again, Thanksgiving brought success. Various organizations will feed the poor and the elderly holiday dinners. U.S. servicemen around the world will be served nearly 175 tons of turkey and 24 tons of cranberry sauce.

President Ford, in proclaiming Thursday "a day of national thanksgiving," urged the nation to "join in expressing personal gratitude for the blessings of liberty and peace we enjoy today."

"I call upon all Americans on this day to gather with family and friends in homes and places of worship and join in offering gratitude for this nation's countless blessings," Ford said.

Open Program For Junior Stars

KINGSTON
David J. Panner, executive director of the Children's Rehabilitation Center of the Ulster-Greene Counties on Webster Street, was guest speaker at the open program of the Alice M. Scardefield Constellation of Junior Stars 25, Saturday, Nov. 22, at the Kingston Masonic Temple, 31 Albany Avenue.

Panner was invited to speak to those assembled on Cerebral Palsy and its related defects. Miss Susan Yochmann, Exalted Star of Light and Love, presented Panner with a donation of $105 which was donated by the members of the Alice M. Scardefield Constellation of Junior Stars 25 from the proceeds from a Fashion Show they sponsored in September. An additional $100 was donated to the National Cerebral Palsy Foundation in the name of Miss Sandy Hazelwood, Grand Exalted Star of the Grand Constellation of the State of New York. Miss Hazelwood has chosen Cerebral Palsy Association for her Charity Project for her term.

A musical degree entitled "F" is for Friends and Fun was staged by the officers of the Constellation. Mrs. Beatrice Gille, of Clinton Chapter 445 Order of the Eastern Star, was escorted through the degree and received wishes of friendship on behalf of all those in attendance that evening. Miss Yochmann presented metallic rulers inscribed with the Golden Rule motto to all those assembled at the program. The Golden Rule is Miss Yochmann's motto for her term and she feels that True Friendships could only be obtained by following this Rule.

Miss Laurie Mine, Star of Mercy, was escorted to the East and presented with a trophy from the Exalted Star as best musical accompanist. Miss Mine accompanied the exalted star during the talent show earlier this month when Miss Yochmann won a trophy for best musical talent.

Miss Irene Boyle, member of the Grand Advisory Board, was escorted to the East and introduced and accorded Grand Honors. Visiting dignitaries also were escorted and introduced and accorded a hearty round of applause. They were: Allen Rowe, Region Senior Councilor of the Four Rivers Region of the State of New York Order of DeMolay; and David Rowe, Master Councilor of Colonial Chapter Order of DeMolay of Kingston. Members of both Colonial Chapter and Rhinebeck Chapter Order of DeMolay attended the evening's festivities. Twenty-nine young people joined in a friendship circle at the close of the program. During the social hour following the program an and penny social was held while refreshments were served.

Gamma Chi Activities

ST. REMY
The November meeting of Gamma Chi Chapter No. 2392, Beta Sigma Phi, took place recently at the home of Betty Rae Decker of St. Remy. A model business meeting took place for the benefit of the six new rushes who were present for the first time. They were Nancy Smith, Jean Nerone, Anne Marie McFarland, Colleen Misove, Barbara Sass, and Janet Borello.

Members decided to continue the practice of giving a Thanksgiving basket to a needy family. A donation was sent to United Way of Ulster County. The Chapter will also take part in a new program, "Mail For Tots," which will include writing letters and sending cards to children who are ill and will be hospitalized for a long period of time. Some of these small patients are terminally ill.

In December, a decorating party is planned at the Infirmary Annex at Golden Hill. Refreshments will be served to the patients after the decorating project.

The Pledge Ritual dinner took place Nov. 25 at Beekman Arms in Rhinebeck. After the business meeting, a program was presented which included "Of House and Home" by Elsie Kemble and "The Women to Whom We Are Indebted" by Donna Lawrence.

Masseur's Late Hours Rub Wife Wrong Way

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a masseur, and he has his own parlor. Our problem is the growing number of women who find it impossible to come in for massages during Walter's regular working hours. To accommodate them, he stays evenings, which means Walter and his customer are there all alone.

One woman used to come in three times a week — always after hours — so I started going down there when she did, and she finally quit coming in for massages.

Walter became upset and said he doesn't want me coming down to his parlor at all because the word is getting around that he has a jealous wife — which is hurting his business.

I say he does well enough during the day hours and doesn't need to work evenings, too. Also, I've never known him to work overtime on a man or an elderly or obese woman — only young, good-looking ones.

Have I a right to be suspicious?

WALTER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Yes. But you can't be absolutely sure until you catch Walter rubbing one of his customers the wrong way.

DEAR ABBY: I am stationed in Seoul, Korea, and read your column in the Pacific Stars and Stripes.

My wife is back in the States. We've been married two years, but have spent only 10 months together because of my Army training and stationing in Korea.

My wife used to smoke before we were married, but I asked her to quit and she did.

She wrote to tell me she has started smoking again. She says it "relaxes" her and keeps her weight down. "Only half a pack a day," she claims, but I am very much upset because I hate the habit and don't want her to smoke at all.

As her husband, do I have the right to demand that she quit? My mother used to smoke over three packs a day, and you should have seen her when she got up in the morning. I don't want that to happen to my wife.

What should I do?

FAR FROM HOME

DEAR FAR: Don't make an issue of it in your letters. You'll only upset her and increase her need to "relax." When you get home, ASK her to please quit. But I warn you, unless she herself is motivated to quit, she probably won't.

Being a husband doesn't give you the "right" to demand anything except fidelity.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14-years-old and ashamed to admit it, but I still wet the bed.

When my friends ask me if I can spend the night with them, I make up an excuse like, "My mother won't let me."

Abby, I know it's a sin to lie, but I just can't tell them that I still wet the bed. Can you help me?

ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED: There are more kids your age who still wet the bed than you would believe, and it's nothing to be ashamed of.

Ask your mom to get a "wet alarm." (It's advertised in leading mail-order catalogues — and it really works! After you've tried it, write again and tell me if it worked for you. I care.

The FAA and Stewart

A recent environmental report on possible expansion of Stewart Airport near Newburgh confirms estimates make previously of tremendous economic benefits.

The Federal Aviation Administration made the study. It was necessary before the Metropolitan Transportation Authority could proceed with the expansion of the airport.

Specifically, the report deals with the projected lengthening of the main runway of the airport from its present 8,000 feet to 12,000 feet. In these days of economic hardship and with the jobless rolls increasing, The Freeman is happy over the prospect of creating more than 4,000 new jobs when work on the runway expansion begins.

In addition, the infusion of more than $50 million annually into the region's economy and a county population increase of more than 10,000 within 10 years is also good news.

The only negative factors, at least according to the detailed report, are increased air and noise pollution. But they are expected to remain well within acceptable limits and there would be no other significant environmental changes.

According to the consultants, Stewart is admirably located to serve its intended purpose as a regional airport, with equal distances to other airports at Albany, Binghamton, Wilkes Barre and Hartford.

Proponents of the airport, who have been battling for months to get moving with the work, view the expansion as the biggest single factor in lifting the Mid-Hudson region out of its economic doldrums.

The next step in the long approval process is a public hearing in December. There will be much opposition at that hearing, but, hopefully, the proponents will use the FAA report as a formidable weapon against environmental arguments.

On-Site Picketing

The United States Senate passed a recent bill that could have serious consequences on future construction projects—particularly on much needed housing.

The bill gives the building trades unions the right to picket all non-union construction sites. In short it's nothing more than the United States government forcing compulsory unionism on an entire industry.

Because of this bill the competition that now exists between union and non-union employers will be severely diminished.

Senator Jacob Javits was one of those voting in favor of the bill. This state's other Senator James Buckley voted against it.

A Presidential veto is necessary to defeat this union power-grab, which would enable a union to shut down a complete construction site whenever it has a dispute with one of the sub-contractors working there.

The Freeman urges its readers to urge their area Congressmen to support President Ford's veto, if and when it occurs.

The NYC Situation

Same Problem Here

Editor, The Freeman:

We do not have to laugh at the bankruptcy that the people of New York City and their city faces. Politicians in general are more concerned with lining their pockets, not about the suffering of the people. No wonder why 40 per cent of the voters do not even bother to register to vote. They lost faith in both the elephant and the jackass.

The people here in the Hudson Valley are in the same boat, and soon will feel the pinch, perhaps worse than New York City. How many people right now are losing their property, houses, farms, etc., because they cannot meet the high school and land taxes? The people who invested their life savings to buy a few thousand dollars in city bonds now face misery. What about our local people who in the course of their 40-50 years of saving will be thrown out of their property because of high taxes?

Sometime ago, while I was lying sick in bed with bronchitis, three men rushed in, stating that they were appointed to reassess my property here in Plattekill. Like an invasion of locusts these so-called reassessors (none of them known by me as local residents) started to run around knocking on the doors of the tenants of Maple Villa and asking for information about the size and content of their apartments. So, while I was sick and in bed, through the windows of my room I had the opportunity to see the bunch of hoodlums running wildly with rulers, pencils, paper, pads, and cameras, snapping pictures of the "enemy" territory. I even saw them snapping pictures of a doghouse belonging to a tenant.

Of course, this is not surprising, and our people better realize very quickly that we are confronted by a great conspiracy. The utilities, with the help of their stooges, the Public Service Commission, are in a race to see how much and how fast they can raise their rates. These so-called reassessors are busy raising our assessments so they can serve their masters in the counties and in Albany, and receive their fat salary at the expense of the taxpayer.

I would advise the public to join the "Concerned Consumers" in their localities and the "Taxpayers for Taxpayers Assoc." and fight back. We must teach the politicians big and small that in the peoples' organizations there is power. Either we unite while there is time, or soon we will unite in the cemetery. Our counties are already broke trying to support all the people on welfare, but in the near future when we taxpayers go broke we will not be able to join welfare, because there won't be very many taxpayers alive.

Sincerely,
ANGELO DeLEWIS,
Modena

Secede From the Union

Editor, The Freeman:

We've been hearing in press, radio and TV constant dire predictions of the imminent bankruptcy of the State of New York. As New Yorkers, we are concerned and also amazed at the lack of human compassion on the part of our President Ford. Many suggestions are being made about how to solve the problem. Mainly they suggest cutting expenses by firing half of the city workers (what they plan to do with unemployment increases, they don't mention).

In discussing these problems with our son, we came up with our own suggested solutions:

A Dollar From Everyone

Editor, The Freeman:

I am writing in concern of the crisis now occurring in New York City. The problem of NYC going into default, in itself, is quite disturbing and will most definitely affect the U.S. as a whole.

I am but one individual in a state of many, where I have very little power as one. I feel the press should be a good way to be voiced. I was thinking about what is going on with NYC the other day and came up with an idea. Maybe someone else has thought of it, but I haven't heard about it. With due reason, I feel that many people are concerned with NYC going under. Even people in Kingston are talking about the problem. The problem being—New York City is waiting on the government for financial aid, when the government should be kissing the city's behind. (U.S. spending in Vietnam equaled $1 million a day.)

To get to the point—why not start a state-wide aid collection to help out NYC? If everyone in this state donated one dollar, the city wouldn't have to sweat as bad. Look at all the money each individual wastes every day!

A legitimate committee would have to be formed. Not one formed from a bunch of lawyers and political figures, but one of enthusiastic individuals such as teachers, consumer aid specialists and eager volunteers. Unfortunately a sponsor would be necessary to get the gears moving ($).

Look at it this way, why not let the people of New York State help save the city. Give 'em something to be proud of, they (we) pay enough taxes and only see the outcome of their efforts every once so often.

There is a whole array of complaints I could think of against the governments disconcert with NYC's problem, but it seems like such a waste. Well, if anything as I've suggested can be done, please get it started. You are the press, one of the most powerful forms of communication we have in our system. Help the city before it's too late.

Thank you for your time.

MICHAEL W. FLANDERS,
Kingston.

'I Couldn't Have Done Better Myself'

Inside Report

Reagan Campaigns

By Rowland Evans
And Robert Novak

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Ronald Reagan in his first two days as a full-fledged presidential candidate showed how difficult it will be for President Ford's supporters to successfully brand him the Barry Goldwater of 1976.

While preaching the evangelical conservatism that delights the Republican party's dominant right wing, Reagan avoided the hip-shooting that destroyed Goldwater in 1964. Moreover, his advisers have salted his prepared statements with a phrase here and there retreating from unrelieved anti-detente and pro-big business dogmatism.

The high point of the first two days was an hour-long question-and-answer session in Manchester, N.H., attended by 1,100, which proved one of the virtuoso exhibitions in Reagan's dozen years in politics. The controlled, entertaining and often eloquent performance could be matched in mechanical execution by no other candidate today.

Thus, the news for the White House from Reagan's campaign debut in five key primary states (Florida, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Illinois, California) is bad: the Ford campaign formula for cutting down the Reagan challenge is unlikely to get much help from Reagan himself.

That formula began emerging within the last two weeks. Ford operatives, belatedly reconciled to Reagan's running, started spreading the word that the Republican party should never repeat the debacle of 1964 by nominating another Goldwater.

Inflexible Positions

Indeed, Reagan's positions on this opening swing were as inflexibly rightward as Sen. Goldwater's: anti-abortion, anti-busing, anti-ERA, critical of the United Nations and the Vladivostok SALT agreement, pro-business, pro-balanced budget, pro-military spending.

Where Reagan last week differed from Goldwater a decade ago is the absence of offhand, extreme-sounding Reagan pronouncements on Social Security, nuclear warfare and the like. In fact, Reagan erred on the side of caution last week. Weak spots of his opening press conference in Washington were his refusal to discuss specifics of defense spending and New York fiscal problems for lack of detailed knowledge — inadvertent deference to the incumbent President's expertise.

Moreover, Reagan's opening speech contained two small items of success for what his astute campaign manager, John Sears, has sought all year: a subtly altered posture making Reagan acceptable to the great American center.

Item No. 1: He listed "big business" along with "the Congress, the bureaucracy, the lobbyists and big labor" as among the nation's problem-makers. Item No. 2: While assailing the Ford Administration's soft-boiled bargaining with the Soviet Union, he proposed to "continue" to seek peace "through detente."

Reagan's ideological rigidity still poses some problems. Responding to questions at Manchester from radical young members of the People's Bicentennial Commission, he could not bring himself to say a harsh word about corporate business.

On My Mind

Accepts Responsibility

Editor, The Freeman:

A week ago two kittens made their way to my home. After calling neighbors, friends, acquaintances, and strangers, I came to the unhappy conclusion that they had not strayed from a warm home, but had been dropped in the neighborhood by some one who could not or would not take the responsibility for their existence.

If you do not wish the chore of finding homes for kittens, have your female spayed. If you have kittens already, either find them a home or take them to the appropriate agency yourself. Don't shift the unwelcome task to a stranger just because she lives in a neighborhood that looks like a "good place to drop the kittens." I resent having to take the responsibility of finding homes for these kittens because someone else passed the buck. I resent the unhappiness it has caused my children who would like to keep them but cannot.

I repeat, if you choose to have animals, accept the responsibility that goes with them.

Sincerely,
LUANNE S. SHIVERICK
West Hurley

P.S. Thanks to a Freeman ad the kittens now have a home.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Hoover's Tricks On Dr. King

By Jack Anderson with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The FBI's undercover campaign to besmirch the late Dr. Martin Luther King was even more incredible than the recent Senate hearings revealed.

It began, as the testimony showed, with the late J. Edgar Hoover. The cantankerous FBI chief developed a boiling hatred for King during the turbulent 1960s.

Some suspect that Hoover became jealous of King's Nobel peace prize, an honor the old man had coveted for himself. Others say Hoover simply became convinced, altogether falsely, that the civil rights leader was a communist sympathizer.

From close associates of both antagonists, we have now pieced together more of the compelling story.

Early in the 1960s, the FBI began monitoring King's activities. Some of his hotel rooms were bugged. One of the tapes contained a replay of an uproarious party, which he had attended at Washington's old Willard Hotel.

The FBI director and his trusted sidekick, Clyde Tolson, conspired together to send this embarrassing tape to King's wife, Coretta. The idea disturbed the subordinates who were ordered to carry out the blackmail plot. But in those days, no one in the FBI dared to stand up to the formidable Hoover.

Upon Hoover's instructions, the tapes were doctored in the FBI lab to bring out King's voice, loud and clear. Then the tape was carefully cleaned of fingerprints or telltale evidence that might link it to the FBI.

The tape was packed in a seven-inch reel box, which was also sanitized of fingerprints. Hoover's orders were, as one aide recalls, to mail it "from a southern state" to Coretta King in Atlanta.

An FBI agent, unaware of the contents of the poisonous package, was dispatched by plane to Florida to mail it. This was the sole purpose of his plane trip.

The vindictive Hoover also ordered that a separate message, suggesting suicide, should be mailed to King himself. It was typed, according to one source, on an old typewriter, with a smudgy, red-and-black ribbon.

The civil rights leader later speculated that Hoover got the suicide idea from reports that King as a child had tried to injure himself following the death of a beloved grandmother. Our FBI sources doubt, however, that Hoover knew about this childhood incident.

In any event, the diabolical message suggested that King had only 34 days to take the "one way out." The 34 days coincided with the date he was supposed to receive the Nobel prize in Oslo.

Clearly, the suicide suggestion and scurrilous tape were timed to hit King with a one-two punch. But the FBI had not reckoned with the enormous workload at King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference. For weeks, the group had been collecting tapes of King's speeches for posterity.

The FBI material, therefore, was buried in the pileup of tapes and mail. Dr. King showed up in Oslo, accepted the award and returned home, quite unaware that he had been invited by the FBI to kill himself.

As King's friends recall, it was Coretta

who eventually opened the package from Florida. One friend has the impression that the letter was sent in the same package with the tape.

Coretta King played part of the scratchy, garbled tape and then called in her husband. King was aware that the FBI was trying to discredit him. He immediately concluded that both the tape and letter were the doing of the FBI.

Next day, he summoned some of his closest associates to his Atlanta offices. Among them were the Reverends Ralph Abernathy, Joseph Lowery and Andrew Young.

As they entered, King sighed: "You'd think the FBI would understand that we're trying to save America." The Nobel laureate showed his colleagues the letter. All agreed it was no mere crank note but a foolish FBI attempt to get King to kill himself. Young recalls that King chuckled grimly over the preposterousness of the scheme.

The group also listened carefully to the tape, which was often inaudible. But King's voice could be heard making an occasional ribald crack. There was also audible evidence of a sexual interlude. They agreed, however, that King was not involved in this portion of the tape.

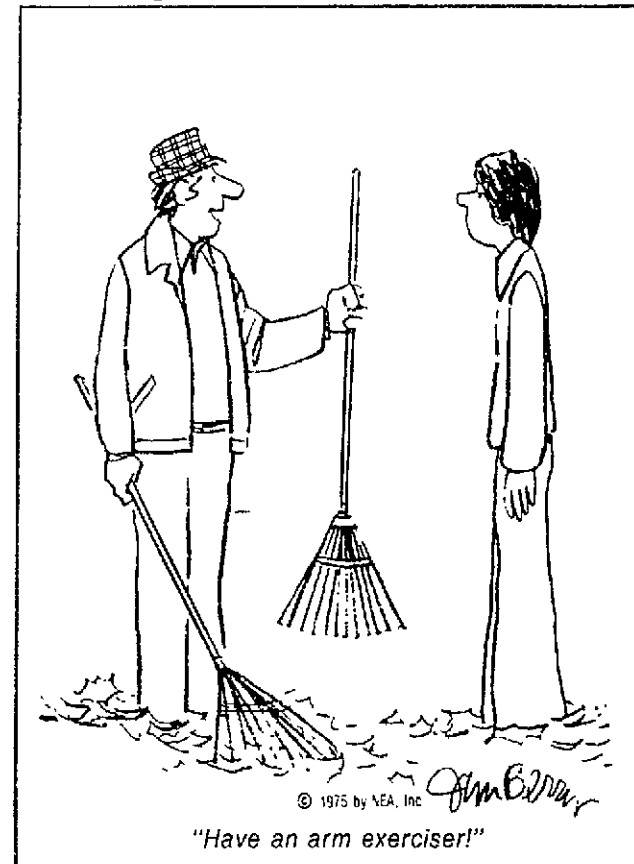

Then the civil rights leader, speaking sorrowfully, said he had previously felt he could count on the FBI to protect his rights. But no longer, he said, could the FBI be trusted.

Footnote: We were the first to report on May 24, 1968, that the FBI was bugging and badgering Dr. Martin Luther King. We reported that the FBI, among other things, had spread stories about his sex life.

At the request of King's associates, we investigated the FBI's smear charges against him and published our findings on October 9. The Senate hearings have now confirmed our revelations.

A REMINDER: There are only a few days left to participate in our search for a bicentennial slogan. All entries must be postmarked before midnight, December 1. The best one will be adopted by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration. Send your slogans to SLOGANS USA, Box 1976, Washington, D.C.

Berry's World

Election A Logical Conclusion

By Ralph Ingersoll

The news that a newcomer Democrat in New Hampshire, campaigning on a "do something about it" theme, beat a Republican professional backed by our status-quo President seems to me not that he won so handily but that the winning itself made so much news.

Columnists, commentators, and politicians from coast to coast got so excited — and still seem to be — that you'd think there had been a major shift in the public's reaction to what's been happening in 1975.

Did they really think that Americans were insensitive to the continuing inflation in the prices of their necessities, callous to the misery of the mounting number of their countrymen unemployed, content with their government's handling of the energy shortage that looms over our future? So what was surprising about even a conservative New Englander casting the majority of their votes as they did: for a man who gave them his word that he'd do his damndest to do something about it?

It would truly have been news if they hadn't!

Id do not know newly made Sen. Durkin and have no opinion on what impact he may or may not have on our Washington establishment, but I sure am pleased that the issues on which he finally got himself solidly elected stirred up such a hullabaloo.

As our national crisis deepens, what has appalled me most has never been the crisis itself but the complacency with which it seemed to be accepted.

"Just another recession; it is already beginning to work its own way out of it" our wise men have been reassuring us. And my feeling, from its onset, has been that that is pure bunk. Its dimensions are world wide and it will not "work its own way out of it."

Intelligent, far seeing and forceful actions to meet it head-on, to check it and to turn it around, are long overdue.

I do not, never have, preached inevitable doom, but I would if I did not have such solid faith that we will get up on our hind legs and do something tangible, constructive and imaginative about it when we wake up — or are awakened — to its seriousness. And to me, neither the administration in the Big White House nor its opposition in the bigger-domed one has yet reacted to it in the vigorous terms its solution calls for.

Instead, it seems still to be regarded by both sides as no more than a passing phenomenon to be capitalized on for political purposes.

We are, in my opinion, far beyond the point at which vote-getting is all that is at stake. We're no longer playing the kind of game they used to play in smoke-filled rooms: how's the best way to kid the public and get (or keep) our team on the gra y train?

Not cute tricks but clear thinking — and courageous actions, taken now — are what these times call for. We met and licked a worse depression than this one in the nineteen thirties. We can, and I am wholly confident will again, lick this one — when we wake up to its reality. So thank the good Lord for the tinkle that has been sounded in New Hampshire.

White House Confirms Probe of Ford's Son

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House has confirmed that President Ford told the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) it could investigate rumors his son, Jack, bought cocaine from a drug dealer in Salt Lake City last year.

The investigation was closed when it was learned young Ford was not in the city at the time of the rumored sale. Deputy White House press secretary William Greener said the President told H. Stuart Knight, head of the Secret Service, to allow the Drug Enforcement Administration to conduct the investigation earlier this year.

First word of the investigation came Tuesday from syndicated columnist Jack Anderson on ABC's "Good Morning America."

According to Anderson, the DEA was "tipped off" that young Ford, one of the President's three sons, "had been seen buying cocaine from a known dealer in Salt Lake City." Anderson said the tip was brought to Ford's attention. Greener said Ford received the information and told Knight to proceed with the investigation and the White House would not interfere in any way.

Beame Takes Action

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor Abraham Beame, responding to protests over prison conditions at Rikers Island, has ordered the assignment of 69 new guards, a delay in the closing of one jail and efforts to reopen another.

The mayor made his announcement Tuesday after meeting with leaders of the correction officers' union who presented him with 13 demands stemming from the recent 17-hour riot at Rikers Island.

Beame's six-point program was intended to ease overcrowding in the jail, which contributed to the outbreak. Some 1,700 rioting inmates held five guards hostages Sunday night and Monday.

In another development, Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola said he had requested federal funds to establish a court in the Rikers jail to eliminate the "heavy cost" of moving inmates to outside courts for purposes other than trial.

Beame suspended the closing of the Bronx House of Detention for a month and ordered city lawyers to ask U.S. District Judge Morris Lasker for permission to reopen the Manhattan Men's House of Detention.

Lasker ordered the prison closed several months ago because of what he described as inhuman conditions.

'Sweeping Review' Is Asked

NEW YORK (UPI) — The state agency investigating charges of sexual misconduct and other abuses at two drug rehabilitation centers has urged replacement of the chief of a state drug-abuse program.

State Investigation Commission Chairman David W. Brown Tuesday recommended a "sweeping review" of rehabilitation centers operated by the state Office of Drug Abuse Services, headed by Anthony Cagliostro.

Brown also suggested the possible closing of the two centers the commission investigated, the Ray Brook Drug Rehabilitation Center near Saranac Lake and the Otisville Rehabilitation Center near Middletown.

The SIC head said Cagliostro's "stewardship and his attitude fail to inspire confidence."

"I would certainly have no problem in concluding that the commissioner and his staff should be replaced" if the management at the other ODAS facilities was similar to what the commission found at Otisville and Ray Brook, Brown said.

Brown said the agency allowed "a shocking series of abuses of several different kinds" at the two centers. ODAS operates 10 similar facilities in the state, but they have not been inspected by the SIC.

"I think we can draw the reasonable inference that these same problems exist at the other centers," Brown said at the close of public hearings which began Nov. 17.

Cagliostro, reached at home for comment on the charges, was highly critical of the SIC and its investigation.

"From what I've heard and what I've seen, the SIC has blown some unfortunate incidents way out of proportion and is misleading the public into believing that these incidents are representative of life at the facilities," Cagliostro said. "That, I deny."

At the hearings, a former woman inmate at Ray Brook said she was repeatedly asked to perform sexual favors for staff members at the facility in return for small privileges.

She said homosexuality was widely practiced and that drugs or alcohol were used frequently by patients there. Similar charges were made by staff members and former inmates at Otisville.

Rep. Gilman Dismayed Over Delay in MIA Paris Meeting

MIDDLETOWN
Congressman Benjamin A. Gilman (R-26th Dist.) said that he "regrets the delay" caused by the postponement by the Vietnamese of a scheduled Monday meeting by the House Select Committee on MIA's with Vietnam's officials in Paris but expressed optimism that "some good can still come from such a meeting which is being re-scheduled for December."

Select Committee Chairman Congressman G.V. Montgomery of Mississippi announced that "our meeting in Paris with Vietnamese officers has been postponed. I have just received a cable from Paris asking that we delay our trip until December in order that we may meet with Ambassador Von Van Sung of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam. The Ambassador is currently in Vietnam."

The House Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia was to meet on Monday with officials of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam and the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam.

"While I am disappointed that this last minute delay has forced a postponement of the meeting," Gilman said, "I still look forward to a December meeting with Ambassador Von Van Sung in order to try to resolve the MIA issue."

Gilman said that he was encouraged that "the Vietnamese government has shown a desire to proceed on a basis of consultation and discussion with the Legislative branch of government to try to resolve the problems surrounding the

The members of the Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia, in addition to Gilman and Montgomery, include: Richard Ottinger (New York, 24th Dist.); Patricia Schroeder (Colorado, 1st Dist.); Tom Harkin (Iowa, 5th Dist.); Jim Lloyd (California, 35th Dist.); John J. Moakley (Mass., 9th Dist.); Tennyson Guyer (Ohio, 4th Dist.); Paul McCloskey (California, 12th Dist.) and Henry B. Gonzalez (Texas, 21st Dist.).

Would Deny Sanctuary

WASHINGTON, D.C.
Rep. Benjamin A. Gilman of Middletown, (R-26th Dist.) has supported a bill which calls on the President to seek an international convention to draft a treaty to deny sanctuary to international terrorists.

The measure, proposed by Rep. Lester L. Wolff, is the result of a meeting he, Rep. Gilman and several other representatives had last August with Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Miki.

The U.S. Congressmen were taking part in a Far Eastern study mission when they met with Prime Minister Miki, who stressed the importance of world nations agreeing to the denial of sanctuary to any international terrorists.

Gilman noted that terrorism has been increasing at an alarming rate and a rate and agreed that a concerted effort is needed, with the United States taking a lead role in bringing about such a crackdown.

"We hope this bill will block out the few havens left for the perpetrators of so many violent barbaric acts," Gilman noted.

Hearing Request Made

NEWBURGH
The Hudson River Valley Council (HRVC) has asked Orange County Executive Louis Mills to postpone public hearings on the environmental impact assessment report for Stewart Airport.

"This request is being made to allow all individuals and groups with a vital interest in the future of Stewart Airport adequate time to study the plan in order that informed and constructive comments on the report may be made," a council spokesman said.

"Because these hearings are the culmination of four years of anticipation this report and this issue deserve more careful examination than the allotted time period can possibly provide. We believe that inadequately prepared hearings are worse than no hearings at all."

"In the interest of constitutional due process, we have formally requested that these hearings be postponed to a later date."

HRVC, noting that it had received its first copies of the report on Nov. 20, asked that the scheduled Dec. 17 hearing be postponed to mid-January.

Attorney Won't Appeal

HILO, Hawaii (UPI) — An attorney says he will not appeal a judge's ruling in the case of Alice Cameron, whose lifesustaining respirator was ordered unplugged by a judge's order.

Ron Gaddis, a legal aid counsel assigned to represent the woman, said Tuesday she feels he does not have an "appealable case."

Gaddis said he believed the five doctors who agreed Miss Cameron was dead "had gone to extra efforts to be sure they were doing the right things and had conducted every conceivable test."

Dr. Maurice Nicholas, a Honolulu neurosurgeon who conducted two brain wave tests on the woman and found no sign of life, said Tuesday she was dead by modern standards, though in the "old definition" she could be considered alive.

Nichols said modern medical techniques can keep a person's heart and lungs functioning "for days" after the brain dies.

"Medically and morally," she was dead, Dr. Nicholas said.

Fred Lynn First Rookie MVP

Something to Smile About

Fred Lynn's wife, Dee Dee, has reason to smile and be proud of him—the Boston Red Sox rookie, who last season batted .331 with 105 RBI's and 21 homers to lead the lead in slugging, was named American League Rookie of the Year last month and capped that off by winning Most Valuable Player honors. Lynn is the first player to win both awards in the same year. (UPI)

A WORLD SERIES BEAUTY

What's For An Encore?

BOSTON (UPI) — What can Fred Lynn do for an encore to being named Most Valuable Player and Rookie of the Year in the American League?

The 23-year-old Lynn, who won those honors, already has made up a list. "I think the two big things I'd like to do next year are cut down on my number of strikeouts (95) and steal more bases," said the center fielder from El Monte, Calif., who batted .331 and drove in 105 runs last season in leading the Boston Red Sox into the World Series. "I think I stole something like 10 bases in 15 tries last season and I think I can do better than that."

Lynn, drafted in the second round in 1973 after an All America career at Southern California, also anchored the Red Sox' outfield with his outstanding defensive ability and strong throwing arm.

Yet he promises even greater plays next season after a twotwink thick pad is installed along the outfield wall.

"I'm going to run into that wall all day now," he said.

The wall was responsible for the quietest moment of last season's wild sixth World Series game. Lynn crashed into the concrete after chasing a Ken Griffey fly and slumped limply to the ground. Eventually, he got up and played the rest of the game, despite a painful bruise of the tailbone.

"It feels fine now, though," said Lynn recently after having x-rays of the back taken.

Even with perfect health, Lynn will have difficulty repeating the fantasy season of 1975. "It's not that I'm superstitious or believe in the sophomore jinx. It's just that next year everything is going to be tougher to achieve," said Lynn, who also hit 21 homers and scored 103 runs as a rookie. "Last season no one knew what to expect from me and the pitchers on the other teams didn't know me. Next year everyone is going to expect me to do the same things."

"But I'm not going to pressure myself to do better."

Lynn plans to prepare for the pressure of '76 by relaxing all winter. Presently en route to his West Coast home, Lynn will hibernate with friends until January, playing golf, basketball and lifting weights to stay in shape. He also will spend many a day around local lakes and ponds, fishing for the big ones.

"Fred would love to forget baseball in the winter," said his wife Dee Dee. "I honestly believe he loves fishing more than baseball."

A private person who endures rather than enjoys the limelight, Lynn loves the seclusion of quiet waters.

"I live two lives, a public and a private life," said Lynn. "But at all times I just try to be myself; I don't put on any facade. I'm not interested in a lot of publicity and having people all around me. I get my enjoyment between the (foul) lines and I get my enjoyment at home."

Right now Fred Lynn can go home and enjoy the two highest individual honors a rookie baseball player could achieve.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fred Lynn's storybook year for the Boston Red Sox was climaxed today when he became the first rookie in major league baseball history to be named his league's most valuable player.

The 23-year old native of Chicago, who batted .331, hit 21 homers and drove in 105 runs last season, was voted the American League award by the largest margin in the 45-year history of the balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America. He previously had been voted the American League's Rookie of the Year by the same association.

Lynn received 22 of a possible 24 first-place votes, with relief ace Rollie Fingers of the Oakland A's picking up the other two, and also was named No. 2 on two ballots for a total of 326 points. Slugger John Mayberry of the Kansas City Royals finished second with 157 points followed by Jim Rice, another Red Sox rookie, who had 154 points.

The 169-point margin was the largest in history, exceeding the 167½ point margin by which Joe Morgan of the Cincinnati Reds won this year's National League MVP award.

The only other rookie who ever came close to winning a MVP award was Pete Reiser of the 1941 Brooklyn Dodgers, who finished second behind teammate Dolph Camilli.

"I am very honored that the baseball writers have chosen me as their most valuable player of the American League," said Lynn when informed of the award. "It is the most prestigious award that a player can earn. To achieve this in my first season is a very pleasant surprise and a big thrill. For as long as I play in the major leagues, this year will be a very special one for me."

No question about that last statement.

Lynn's year transcended his statistics. An articulate but quiet person, he made contributions to the Red Sox that rivaled those made by such great players as Stan Musial, Joe DiMaggio and Ted Williams to their teams. He hit all types of pitching with equal efficiency and played the outfield with an easy ground-covering grace that defied comparison.

"I have to thank a few persons who helped me get where I am today," Lynn continued. "First and foremost, my father whose guidance and knowledge started me in the right direction. Secondly, my high school and college coaches, Dave Sadell and Rod De-deaux, whose expert teaching in the field of baseball gave me a solid foundation on which to build. I would also like to thank my Red Sox teammates and my wife, Dee Dee, for their help and inspiration all season."

Signed by scout Joe Stephenson in 1972 after an outstanding college career at Southern California, Lynn batted .259 for Bristol in 1973 and .282 for Pawtucket in 1974.

rookie major league season, Lynn once explained, "in a way it's easier to hit in the majors because the pitchers throw the ball over the plate."

Rounding out the top 10 in the voting were Rollie Fingers and Reggie Jackson of the Oakland A's, Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles, Thurman Munson of the New York Yankees, George Scott of the Milwaukee Brewers, Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins and Ken Singleton of the Orioles.

The last Red Sox player to win the MVP award was Carl Yastrzemski, who won it in his Triple Crown year of 1967—the last time before this season that Boston won an American League pennant.

A Project in Trouble

Federal and Provincial police conducted a series of raids at the Olympic Village site in Montreal in what police say was an investigation into possible fraud in the construction of a key Olympic Games facility. Police said some of the raids were carried out Tuesday at the $90 million Olympic Village site, the two pyramid shaped, 980 unit apartment buildings scheduled to house 11,000 athletes at the '76 games. No arrests were made. (UPI)

More Trouble At Olympic Site

MONTREAL (UPI) — The strike-plagued, economical-troubled 1976 Summer Olympics site has been thrown into a new controversy, this time over possible fraud in construction of the Olympic Village.

Some 100 members of the Quebec Police Force and Royal Canadian Mounted Police made 38 raids Tuesday, seizing material from offices of contractors and the homes and offices of high Olympic officials.

"Our men went to different places with search warrants to find information, documents or people pertaining to an alleged fraud in the construction of the Olympic Village," a QPF spokesman said.

"No arrests have been made. We were not out to make any arrests—we were out to get some documents."

He said the search warrants were signed Monday following a months-long inquiry into complaints over the awarding of construction contracts for the Village.

Police would make no comment on reports the alleged fraud involved kickbacks involving some $30 million.

COJO Commissioner General Roger Rousseau said he had been told raids had been made at the home of COJO executive vice president Simon St. Pierre and the offices of Les Terrasses Zarolega, the building contractor for the Olympic Village.

Rousseau said when police arrived at the downtown headquarters of the Olympic Organizing Committee, he invited them to examine all the committee's records.

"I have opened the documents for them to look at," he said. "We want to cooperate completely with the investigation. Our doors are open."

The Olympic Village complex, located in Montreal's east end, is comprised of two pyramid-shaped, 980-unit apartment buildings which will house 11,500 athletes and team officials during the Games.

The Village complex was originally estimated to cost $30 million but the current forecast is $90 million. Construction started last December and it is scheduled for completion next May 17.

The Quebec government formally took over planning and supervision of construction of Olympic facilities last week after cost estimates for the 1976 Games soared over the $1 billion mark.

The original cost estimate for hosting the Games was $310 million and Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau had promised they would be self-financing through sales of coins and stamps, lotteries, broadcast rights and various fund-raising schemes.

The deficit for the Games is now forecast at over $89 million.

Carter Likes The Pressure

Fred Carter says he likes pressure situations and the Philadelphia 76ers believe him.

It was Carter's basket at the buzzer Tuesday night that gave Philadelphia a dramatic 109-108 victory over the Golden State Warriors.

"The play was to Freddie all the way," Philadelphia Coach Gene Shue said in the jubilant 76ers' dressing room. "Freddie hit a great shot."

Before Tuesday night, Golden State had beaten the 76ers six straight times in Philadelphia and the Warriors looked like they had their seventh in a row when they took a 108-107 lead after Charles Dudley hit two free throws with three seconds left.

After the 76ers called a time out, Carter took the inbound pass, fumbled the ball for a split second and then arched a 25-foot shot.

"The shot looked good as it headed toward the basket," Carter said. It swished through the net and the Sixers had their 10th win against five losses, good for first place in the NBA's Atlantic Division.

Seattle defeated New York 128-127, Houston beat Washington 100-89 and Cleveland downed Chicago 98-94 in other NBA games.

Kentucky topped Utah 125-123 in double overtime in the only American Basketball Association game of the night.

SuperSonics 128, Knicks 127

Tom Burleson scored six points in overtime and a game high of 35 to give the Sonics their victory over New York. With Seattle leading 124-123 and 1:43 left, Burleson gave the Sonics a three-point edge with a dunk shot. Bruce Seals then clinched the victory for Seattle with a goal with 51 seconds to go.

Rockets 100, Bullets 89

Calvin Murphy scored 32 points and Mike Newlin added 28 for Houston, which dealt Washington its sixth loss in 13 games. Elvin Hayes led Washington with 28 points while Wes Unseld and Phil Chenier had 14 each.

Cavaliers 98, Bulls 94

Jim Chones scored 23 points and Cleveland held off a fourth-period rally to hand Chicago its ninth loss in a row. Bulls guard Norm Van Lier led all scorers with 28 points.

Colonels 125, Stars 123

Artis Gilmore scored 45 points, including 21 in the last period, for his greatest pro game as Kentucky beat Utah. The Colonels scored five points in the last 54 seconds of the first overtime to tie the score.

Fast Start for Dryden

Goalie Ken Dryden is off to his best start since 1972 and because of that, the Montreal Canadiens are evoking the winning image which has been their hockey heritage.

A year ago at this time, Dryden, coming off a season of self-imposed inactivity, was floundering along with an unimpressive 3.24 goals-against average. Not coincidentally, the once proud Canadiens were trailing the once expansionist Los Angeles Kings in the National Hockey League's Norris Division title chase.

Tuesday night, however, Dryden blocked 35 shots in shutting out the Atlanta

Flames 4-0. It was his fourth shutout in 16 games this season and lowered his goals-against average to less than 1.7 per game.

Meanwhile, the victory lifted the Canadiens' record to 14-4-3 and boosted them six points ahead of Los Angeles, which was losing to Boston.

Montreal Coach Scotty Bowman was asked if Dryden is playing better now than ever before.

"I couldn't say that. He's played some great hockey, you know," Bowman replied. "But he's hot as a pistol right now."

Dryden said the shutout against Atlanta was not his best game of the year.

"The game in Philly was my best game. We lost it 3-1 but one of the goals came in an empty net at the end. That was my best game," he said.

Dryden was then asked if he was setting a specific goal-against figure in his bid for a second Vezina Trophy.

"You don't think about that way," he said. "You proceed from game to game with the idea of keeping it as low as you can. Each season is different."

After a scoreless first period, the Canadiens gave Dryden the only support he needed when Steve Shutt and Mario Tremblay tipped in shots.

Elsewhere, in the only other NHL games, Boston downed Los Angeles 4-2 and Vancouver blanked Buffalo 4-0. In the World Hockey Association, Houston whipped Indianapolis 4-1, Minnesota edged New England 3-2, Cleveland shaded Toronto 4-3 and San Diego bombed Edmonton 7-2.

Bruins 4, Kings 2

Doug Gibson, recalled earlier in the day to replace the suddenly-departed Jean Ratelle, scored his first NHL goal to ignite Boston's triumph over Los Angeles. Ratelle, apparently unhappy over his trade from the New York Rangers to Boston, left to decide his future. Dave Forbes, Ken Hodge and Bobby Schmautz scored the other Bruin goals.

Jean Wants Security

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jean Ratelle apparently wants job security from the Boston Bruins or will retire at the end of the year, says longtime friend and teammate Brad Park.

Ratelle, traded from the New York Rangers 19 days ago along with Park, left the Bruins Tuesday to discuss his future with his wife at their New York home. He was unavailable for direct comment but made it known before leaving for New York that he is unhappy with the Boston Bruins' new contract offer.

"It's not so much the money as other things," said cryptic Harry Sinden, the Bruins' managing director who received a phone call Tuesday from Ratelle's attorney saying the center was in New York.

Park, who drove Ratelle to the airport Tuesday morning, said his friend told him, "If they don't want to give me security, I won't bring my family up (to Boston). I will play till the end of the year, then retire."

Security to the 35-year-old Ratelle, a family man who wants a permanent home for his wife and children, would be a multi-year contract. He presently is in the final season of a four-year contract (at an estimated $200,000 per year) and apparently wants another multi-year pact from the Bruins before uprooting his family and buying a house in the Boston area. The Bruins, reportedly, have not assured Ratelle of a long-term contract.

Steve Kane

Just look at all the artillery hanging in the back windows of the pickup trucks, and check out all those guys in the diner at 4 a.m. disguised as blood clots. You don't have to be a deer hunter to know what time of the year this is.

All well and good. There are worse sports. After all, how many defensive ends do you see performing the redeeming ritual of dressing their victims and stocking their freezers with quarter-back steaks. (I know, the meat would be too Greek.)

Deer hunting has its place today. Of course many people dispute that, including the unsigned author of an article that was published a couple of weeks ago in the Freeman's Tempo Magazine. But that article, like many others of its ilk, was poorly done.

What does not have a place today is bow and arrow hunting. The word at the root of the hunting debate is humane... or inhumane. A case can be made for the hunter in general, but it cannot be stretched to cover the bow and arrow anymore than it can excuse the use of traps.

Without getting emotional about it, it's simply pretty difficult to hit anything with an arrow. It's even more difficult to kill anything. The hunter who does manage to stick an arrow into a deer usually has to follow a blood trail to finish the job, and that can take a long time.

There is no reason for the situation to exist. Not enough animals are taken that way for it to be a factor in population control. Most hunters who go out with a bow are back when the gun season begins anyway, so it's not as if a legion of Robin Hoods is going to be deprived of its favorite pastime.

Let's get rid of bow and arrow hunting. We don't need it, and Bambi certainly doesn't need it. Sportsmen could improve their public image and simultaneously do a service for nature by backing an effort to abolish this weapon from the woods. Just an afterthought... bet that guy who was jumped by the four wild cats in Greene County was glad it wasn't bow and arrow season.

The Ulster County Athletic League recently completed its football season, and true to the tradition of recent years it was another close and exciting fight for the championship. Praise is due the league's players, coaches and officials for a level of sportsmanship the schools can be proud of.

We have to withhold the same praise as far as a minority of UCAL spectators is concerned. Umpire-baiting is one thing, but the verbal abuse that pours from a few leather lunged fans around the county is pretty disgusting.

This year's Highland-Rondout Valley contest was a matchup of two physical clubs battling for first place. A temper flareup or a little display of fisticuffs wouldn't have been surprising under the circumstances, but the conduct of both teams was exemplary.

By contrast there were two fans, both well past their playing days, who roamed the sidelines following the play and directed a steady stream of profanity at the officials.

That stuff has no place at a high school football game, and it is not confined to Highland. Maybe if the "fans" didn't think their act was so amusing they would try watching the game. Or maybe the UCAL ought to do a little more policing of the sidelines.

The Ulster County Community College soccer team will play in its first NJCAA tournament today. UCCC's presence in the tourney is somewhat of a turnaround, because after being burned by disqualification a year ago for having an ineligible player, Senator coach George Vizvary did not recruit quite so heavily this season.

The people who prefer to see local kids on the local college teams were happy at the beginning of the year because Kingston High graduates Dave Farrell, Mike Helmich and John Ivankovic, OCS alumnus Chris Klinger, and Rondout Valley's Bob Roddy were on the squad. Vizvary, a man of high standards, didn't particularly share in that joy. He was slightly pessimistic about his team's chances. It seemed like the best opportunity he'd ever had to win a national championship had already gone down the tubes.

When Ulster won its regional title then, the obvious question was whether Vizvary's opinion of local soccer players had changed. The answer is no.

"Wo won this game today?" Vizvary asked after UCCC's slaughter of Dutchess in the finals. The answer was not the local players. Only one, Farrell, was a starter.

Vizvary, though, is the first to admit that the local product is improving. "These boys are the first fruits of the program we are trying to build," he said. And during the course of the season he gave Farrell and Helmich much credit for solidifying a once-shaky defense. It's just that Vizvary is a perfectionist, and he wants soccer to be played at the highest possible level. His dream is to have a totally American team with European skills.

"Then I can have the competitiveness to go along with the technique," he said.

Red Hook Seeks World Relay Record

RED HOOK
The Red Hook High School Physical Fitness Club will seek to establish a new world record for a 10-man, 42-hour distance record when it sponsors a Run-A-Thon during the Christmas vacation period. The world record is now more than 300 miles.

A special female contingent will also participate in the Run-A-Thon and write their own record, since no record is listed in this group.

Jim Cauldwell and Herb Elsmore are in charge of the run. They may be contacted at Red Hook High School for further information.

The marathon relay is expected to start on Monday, Dec. 29 at 8 p.m. and continue to Wednesday, Dec. 31, at 2 p.m. Each participant runs for one hour every 10 hours around a prescribed course in relay fashion. The Run-A-Thon will be held regardless of weather conditions.

The secondary purpose of the event is to raise funds to construct a running track in Red Hook. At present no such facility exists in the area and this proves a hindrance to track programs in the school.

Red Hook's bid for a world record recognized by Guinness Book of World Records will follow two other attempts set a new standard. One group will try in Minnesota over the Thanksgiving Holiday and one in Maine just before Christmas.

Coleman Shares Lead In Girls Basketball

KINGSTON
While the Red Hook High girls continued to dominate the American Division of the Ulster County Athletic League basketball race, Coleman moved into a share of the lead in the National Division with a 65-35 victory over Marlboro Tuesday.

Kathy Mahoney dumped in 25 points, and Janet Knott added 16 more as Coleman boosted its record to 3-0 and grabbed a tie in the standings with Ellenville. Marlboro fell to 1-2.

Red Hook pounded Pine Bush, 37-22 and improved its slate to 4-0. In other games, Onteora belted Rondout, 53-14, Walkill rolled over New Paltz, 53-19 and Fallsburgh turned back Highland, 36-23.

The Raiders controlled the first half completely, and Pine Bush never had a chance to get in the game. Kelly Mosher paced the defending champs with 15 points.

Ten different Indians found the hoop with Cheryl Cifello's 14 points leading the list as OCS routed Rondout. The losers remained winless after four contests while Onteora evened its record at 2-2.

Alice Crawford was good for 22 points as the Panthers also climbed back to .500. New Paltz fell behind 19-2 in the first quarter and suffered its second loss in three games.

Highland ran out of gas in the last period and failed in its fourth try for a victory. The Comets' Cheryl Prince took game honors with 18 points.

On the sidelines, Coleman (53) vs. Marlboro (35) and Pine Bush (22) vs. Red Hook (37) were the only games in progress. The following are the scores of the games played Tuesday.

Hockey Opener In Dutchess

MILLBROOK
Fourteen players from the Hurley Rec. League in Ulster County will be on rosters of the Dutchess Youth Hockey League which opens its season Sunday at the Millbrook School rink. More than 200 boys will participate in four divisions.

The league, in its fifth season, will be shifting its program into the new Poughkeepsie Civic Center next season. All-star travelling teams will also be formed in the divisions, playing games in the state, Massachusetts, Connecticut and New Jersey.

Captains

WORCESTER, Mass. (UPI) — Dave Quehl, the nation's second leading receiver, and linebacker Lou Kobza, who has started in 39 consecutive games, have been named the permanent captains of the 1975 Holy Cross football team, it was announced Monday.

For the past five years, the Crusaders have named captains for each game, then elected permanent captains prior to the traditional season finale against Boston College.

From Five Million To Freebie for George

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (UPI) — Thirteen months ago, George Foreman got $5 million in Kinshasa, Zaire, the night he lost his world heavyweight title to Muhammad Ali on an eighth round knockout.

Wednesday night, they will pass the hat at the Concord Hotel here, and guests will make contributions to the U.S. Olympic Fund, then watch Foreman fight Jody Ballard in a no-decision bout.

The N.Y. State Athletic Commission has not sanctioned the event, but has no objection to it as an exhibition, since there will be no charge to the spectators who will be hotel guests. The commission also agreed it would not be necessary for Foreman or Ballard to wear protective helmets, which are required in most exhibition contests.

The referee will not be appointed by the commission, which looks upon the match as a public workout by Foreman in preparation for the former champion's projected match against Ron Lyle in January in Las Vegas.

Foreman, hero of the 1968 Olympics when he waved an American flag after winning the heavyweight gold medal, will make his own "substantial contribution" to the Olympic Fund, according to a spokesman at Olympic House in New York.

Gil Clancy, the veteran trainer who is taking over most of Foreman's ring affairs, will be in George's corner as the former champion attempts to regain the form which brought him the title on a second round knockout of Joe Frazier.

Ballard, who has a 22-3 ring record, is expected to weigh in at about 205, while Foreman will be in the vicinity of 220.

Foreman, whose personal affairs have been in somewhat of a mess for several years, has not had a formal bout since his loss to Ali. He appeared on a television show in April, boxing dreary rounds against five different opponents.

Ali, after stopping Joe Frazier after 14 rounds last month in Manila, said he would defend against the winner of a Foreman-Ken Norton match, but that fight has yet to be made.

Don King, the promoter of every Ali fight since Zaire, said last week that Foreman's unwillingness to sign with Norton had moved Ken into the spot of No. 1 challenger for the crown.

Foreman is quick to point out that he knocked Norton out in two rounds, prior to his own defeat at the hands of Ali.

Top ACC Rookie

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Maryland freshman Steve Atkins, a tailback who went 128 yards in only 10 tries in the Terrapins' 62-24 win over Virginia, was named as the rookie of the week in the Atlantic Coast Conference today.

Atkins accounted for two of Maryland's nine touchdowns, scoring in the third quarter on runs of five and 60 yards. In his 60-yard tally, he started to the left, then reversed his field and outdistanced Virginia defenders.

Ben Crenshaw Fires 65

MIYAZAKI, Japan (UPI) — Ben Crenshaw shot a seven under par 65 today for the best round among 40 pros in pro-am competition of the $200,000 Dunlop Phoenix Golf Tournament beginning Thursday.

Crenshaw bogeyed the second hole when he missed the green but sank birdie putts for two inches on the fourth hole, two feet on the fifth and the seventh holes and 15 on the eighth for a three under par 33 on the front nine of the 7,012-yard, par-72 Phoenix Country Club Course. He hit a two iron to be two on the 495-yard, par-five 10th hole and sank an 18-foot putt for an eagle. He rammed in a birdie putt of 10 feet on the 12th and seven on the 17th for a 32 on the back nine. He collected $500.

Hsieh Min Nam of Taiwan who plays out of Japan, was runnerup with a five under par 33-34-87. Defending champion Johnny Miller bogeyed the first two holes but shot a four under par 68 to tie for third with Japanese pro Isao Aoki.

Don January fired a one over par 73 but earned $500 as his three amateur partners helped him to win the team score with a 13 under par 59. Runner-up was Crenshaw and his team with a 60.

"I missed the cut last year because of bad putting," Crenshaw said. "The greens were perfect today. The key to success on this course is to drive well. I missed the fairways only three times. The rough is heavy this year and so I think the winning score will be from nine to 14 under par. This is my last tournament this year and I would love to win it."

Maryjane's Kin Have Fingerprints Taken

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — Maryjane Dahl's mother and aunt allowed police to take their fingerprints but they insisted they had no part in the death of the girl whose life-sustaining respirator was unplugged earlier this month.

"We are not criminals... but everybody is treating us like we are," Mrs. Janet Sarvent, Maryjane's mother, said Tuesday shortly before she and her sister, Mrs. Jane Sheehan, were fingerprinted at Nassau County Police Headquarters.

Then, on the verge of tears, she added: "All I did was lose my only child."

Dr. Leslie Lukash, county medical examiner, has stated that Miss Dahl, who was 16 and terminally ill, died Nov. 2 in Mineola's Nassau Hospital after someone pulled the plug on the respirator.

Mrs. Sarvent and Mrs. Sheehan had visited the girl on the night of her death.

Attorney Sidney Siben, representing the two women, said both were at the girl's bedside almost constantly during the week before her death.

"There is no question that they touched the respirator

Search for Gunmen In Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Security forces searched today for as many as ten gunmen believed responsible for the carefully planned ambush killing of two policemen on a deserted country road.

The murders brought to four the number of persons killed in 24 hours of violence in Northern Ireland.

Police said the gunmen waylaid a police patrol jeep Tuesday night near a sharp bend on a narrow road running between Pomeroy and Castlecaulfield about 60 miles west of Belfast.

They killed two policemen in a hail of automatic rifle fire and critically wounded a third.

A fourth man, also wounded, managed to radio for help.

Security forces called it a professionally planned ambush and estimated up to ten gunmen were involved.

The patrol was traveling to Pomeroy to notify a local family of a relative's death.

Earlier Tuesday, gunmen jumped a 22-year-old Protestant in Londonderry as he walked home from work, and shot him in the back.

machine, and there is no question that they left their fingerprints on everything in the room," he said.

"But they did not touch the controls or the plug on the machine, and it is important to make this differentiation."

Your Astrograph

For Thursday, Nov. 27, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be very tactful today in handling people who are helping you, but who are not really obligated to do so. You could rub them the wrong way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're still very prone today to take foolish risks with your resources. Be very wary of all things speculative. Stick to the blue chips.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If there is an unnecessary tempest at home today, chances are the blame can be traced to you. Don't sound off without thinking.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're very easily irritated today, but you're not likely to tell the real cause of your frustration. If you don't, nothing can be resolved.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't let an overenthusiastic friend sell you a bill of goods on a pet project. It could cost you plenty.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're going to let someone set the pace for you rather than determine your own speed. Unfortunately, your speed and theirs aren't in harmony.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't talk about your ideas prematurely today or discuss them with one who isn't in a position to judge objectively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Just because you know a person socially is no reason to deal with them in a business sense. In fact, today scrupulously avoid such involvement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec.)

21) It would be a mistake today to be too self-serving at another's expense. This person would be very irritated if he felt he was being used.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone you'll be closely associated with today has a great big chip on his shoulder. A few loose words could easily knock it off.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) To save money today, you may tackle something that's better left to experts. You could wind up with a larger bill than anticipated.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Normally, you're easy to get along with today, however, you're apt to behave in a manner that others could find offensive.

Your Birthday
Nov. 27, 1975

This coming year you'll be better off if you handle important projects unencumbered by partners. Do what has to be done on your own for best results.

slightly favor opening with one diamond since there is bound to be action.

Our reader showed us the North hand also and the bidding in the box shows how to get to six diamonds.

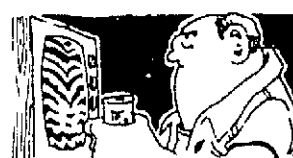

North's spade response is obvious. Now South jumps right to the diamond game. North looks over his hand. Decides South must have enough diamonds for both of them and bids six clubs. This six-club bid is not an effort to play in clubs. It merely shows the ace in case South might want to bid a grand slam.

Police Beat

Auto Accident Brings 3 Deaths

EAST FISHKILL
Three Westchester County residents were killed Tuesday afternoon when the car in which they were riding ran off the Taconic State Parkway in southern Dutchess County and slammed into a tree.

The victims were identified as Anthony J. Amodio, 46; his son, Vincent A. Amodio, 18; and Alexander F. Gold, all of Scarsdale.

Dutchess County Sheriff's Deputies said all three victims were ejected from the vehicle and they could not determine who was driving at the time of the crash.

The three men died a short time after arrival at Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie.

Crash Victims Die

Meanwhile, in other area police matters:

James C. Herring, 21, of Milton, who was critically injured in an Oct. 18 car crash on Route 9W in Marlboro, died Monday at Vassar Brothers Hospital. David M. Thomas, 22, of Beacon, who was a passenger in Herring's car in the two-vehicle collision, remains in critical condition at the hospital.

William Hajek, 73, of Cairo, who was critically injured in a Nov. 17 one-car Thruway crash died recently at Greene County Memorial Hospital in Catskill.

Uninjured in Blast

Workers at JA's Garage in High Falls escaped uninjured Tuesday afternoon in an explosion which damaged two rooms at the garage. High Falls Fire Chief Peter Zegiel said the explosion occurred as workers were attempting to start a car by pouring gas or ether into the carburetor. There was an accumulation of fumes, he said.

Theft of Liquor

Ellenville State Police arrested Walter Swartwood, 22, and Carlos Santiago, 23, both of Kerhonkson Tuesday night on charges of third degree burglary. Police said the two were caught allegedly taking a quantity of liquor from the Granit Hotel in Accord.

Suspicious Malden Blaze

Malden-West Cmp fire officials termed a fire which damaged one room in a vacant bungalow on Main Street in Malden Tuesday afternoon as "suspicious." The blaze apparently started in a mattress, firemen said. Ownership of the building was not definitely known.

Car Theft Charges

Kingston detectives arrested Michael S. Kidwell, 19, of Vienna, Va., and Robert Longendyke, 24, of Sterling, Va., on Tuesday on warrants charging them with second degree grand larceny. Police said the two allegedly stole a car from Kingston and were caught in Pennsylvania. They were returned from Pennsylvania Tuesday.
